Vote in Primary
Tuesday, June 28
12 Noon to 9 P. M.

Expect Big Turnout At Tuesday Primary

Ulster County voters will trek to the polls Tuesday to cast ballots in this year's primary election. Local party leaders and various area organizations made last minute appeals to voters today; reminded them that the Primary is an important responsibility of the voter, pointing out that it offers the only opportunity for enrolled voters to indicate a choice of whom they want to represent their party in the November general election.

Polls will be open at regular polling places throughout the county Tuesday from 12 noon to 9 p. m. Those voting must be currently enrolled in the party of their choice, meaning they voted in the last election or registered in a designated party this past May.

Using Paper Ballot

Ulster County is using a paper ballot for Tuesday's Primary and voters will mark their vote with pencil or ink. The Liberal Party is the only party which does not have a contest this year.

Say Erhard Ready for Soviet Meet

Willing to Talk On German Status

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Ludwig Erhard said he is ready to meet with Soviet leaders at any time here or in Moscow for talks on German problems.

Renewed interest in the possibility of such talks has developed as a result of declining East-West tensions in Europe, currently dramatized by French President Charles de Gaulle's visit to the Soviet Union.

Standing Invitation

Erhard told The Associated Press in the course of an informal discussion of defense and foreign policy problems that Soviet leaders have a standing invitation to visit West Germany.

Asked whether he would be willing to go to Moscow instead, he replied: "I would also be ready to go to Moscow."

On other major issues covered during the discussion in Erhard's office at the Palais Schamberg, the chancellor made these points:

1. He opposes any major withdrawals of U.S. troops from West Germany on the ground that heavy cutbacks could increase the danger of nuclear war and undermine the sense of security of the German people.

Wants Modification

2. He wants modification of the agreement under which West Germany buys arms in the United States to offset American dollar expenditures for maintaining six divisions in West Germany. The agreement should be changed, Erhard said, to allow West Germany to buy peaceful space equipment as well as arms for this purpose.

3. Some transitional arrangement will have to be made to cover French troops remaining in West Germany after they are formally separated from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization July 1. Erhard said he wants the French troops to stay but a new military mission and new legal basis justifying their (Continued on Page 30, Col. 3)

Term Greenhouse Fire Incendiary, Building Damaged

A second Uptown greenhouse fire this year, discovered early Sunday, is said to be incendiary, and is under police probe.

A two-story, frame and glass greenhouse on the Burgevin Inc., property at 214 Pearl Street, was damaged by the Sunday fire reported at 12:13 a. m. The first call was followed by three others and an alarm from Box 4451, Burgevin and Pearl Streets. Firemen said the blaze started on a first floor area of the structure, which was being demolished. It damaged the ceiling and timbers and flooring of the (Continued on Page 29, Col. 8)

Find Viets Depending On U.S. to Bring Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — A limited survey of popular attitudes in government-controlled areas of South Viet Nam indicates people there tend to regard the war as an American war, officials report.

U.S. experts who conducted the survey say there also is a tendency to rely chiefly on the Americans to bring back peace and find answers to South Viet Nam's economic and other problems.

See Downswing

There seems to be a downswing in popular confidence in the ability of the Saigon government to handle effectively the various problems facing South Viet Nam, the survey indicated.

The sampling of Vietnamese views was understood to have been small and was taken in connection with a study of trends in the morale of the Communist Viet Cong.

After interrogating some 200 people, mostly Viet Cong defectors and prisoners, U.S. analysts said they detected what seemed to be a growing feeling of hopelessness among some elements of the Viet Cong.

The analysts reported evidence that Viet Cong morale has become fragile. They said there were signs the combat effectiveness of some Communist units had declined.

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Navy bombers turned a large North Vietnamese fuel dump into an inferno that threw up billows of black smoke visible for 150 miles away at sea, an American spokesman reported today.

Twelve hours after the strike by twin-jet A6 Intruders from the carrier Constellation, the strategic oil stores were still engulfed in flames, Navy reconnaissance pilots said. The target was a fuel storage area 35 miles northeast of Vinh and 160 miles south of Hanoi.

Say Emphysema Produced in Dogs From Tobacco Use

CHICAGO (AP) — Emphysema, a lung disease with a death rate increasing faster in the United States than that of any other single disease, has been produced experimentally in cigarette-smoking dogs, a medical research team reported today.

At two smoking sessions daily, for more than a year, the dogs inhaled cigarette smoke through hollow plastic tubes inserted in their windpipes.

In a report to the general scientific session of the annual meeting of the American Medical Association, the researchers said:

"The inhalation of smoke directly from cigarettes by dogs causes destruction of lung tissue indistinguishable pathologically from that found in human emphysema."

Legislature Has Two Obstacles To Adjournment

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The 1966 Legislature entered adjournment week today facing two major obstacles—the New York City tax package and a stalemate dispute over Gov. Rockefeller's supplemental budget.

Legislative leaders hoped to resolve both issues by mid-week and adjourn the Senate and Assembly by Saturday, thus ending what already has become the longest session in modern times.

4 Die on Area Highways Pushing State Toll to 40

While Ulster County went through the last weekend without a highway fatality, the Associated Press reported 40 sudden deaths resulting from various types of accidents in New York State, including traffic fatalities in Greene, Dutchess, Orange and Delaware Counties.

Twenty-eight persons died of injuries suffered in highway mishaps since Friday at midnight.

Killed on Friday

(George D. Merwin, 17, of Leggs Mills Road, Lake Katrine, was killed Friday afternoon, when his 1964 model convertible was involved in a three-vehicle collision on Route 9W about 3 miles south of Route 209, Town of Ulster. (see photo on Page 1) Joel Leon Halwick, 13, Lake Katrine, a passenger in Merwin's car, remained in critical condition today at Kingston Hospital. Seven persons were injured in the mishap.)

A Greene County girl was killed and her mother and 5-year-old sister were injured seriously at 3:45 a. m. Sunday when the family car went out of control and smashed into a tree off Route 9W in New Baltimore.

Coroner William Sheridan said Janelle Raffiani, 3, of Catskill, died of a fractured skull.

The child's mother, Mrs. Shirley Raffiani, operator of the car, suffered a fractured left wrist, broken nose and internal injuries. Her daughter, Coral, sustained a fractured arm and leg and internal injuries.

Listed As Fair

The condition of Mrs. Raffiani and Coral was listed as fair at Albany Medical Center, where Janelle was pronounced dead.

Police reported that the car was traveling south when it swerved across the highway on the opposite side and hit the tree.

A 34-year-old Dutchess County man was killed and a passenger in his car was critically injured shortly before 12:30 a. m. today when the vehicle hit a median curb on South Avenue near the Poughkeepsie city line.

Dodd's Counsel Asks Bennett Be Disqualified

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd's lawyer asked today that Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, be disqualified in the Senate Ethics Committee's probe of misconduct charges against the Connecticut Democrat.

"It seems clear that Sen. Bennett is not unbiased and impartial and that he has made a prejudgment before hearing the most vital evidence—the testimony of Sen. Dodd himself," said John F. Sonnett, Dodd's lawyer.

He suffered fractures of the right arm, left leg and shoulder and facial lacerations. Mrs. Joseph (Rose) DiDonna, 62, of Kingston, RD 1, driver of another car involved in the mishap, was treated at Benedictine Hospital for shock. The third vehicle in the collision was a truck driven by Albert Oehler, 32, of Kingston RD 2. Seven persons were injured in the mishap. Merwin was Ulster County's 19th highway fatality of 1966. Coroner William S. Keyser rendered a finding of accidental death and said Merwin died of a basal fracture of the skull. (Freeman photo by Wagenföhr)

White Supremacy Ending: Meredith

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The long and turbulent Mississippi march has ended with James H. Meredith — who started it as a "journey against fear" — saying the "governor and every other person is going to pay attention to the Negro."

"The system of white supremacy will reign no longer," Meredith told a heavily guarded rally behind the imposing State Capitol Building Sunday.

Some 16,000 persons, most of them Negroes, flowed through Jackson streets to jam into a portion of the Capitol grounds and adjacent areas.

The final leg of the march — from Tougaloo College on the outskirts of Jackson to the Capitol — and the rally were marked by a subdued atmosphere.

Meredith, 33-year-old Air Force veteran, led the procession with a number of national civil rights leaders, including Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Meredith drew the greatest response from the crowd, which couldn't hear half of what was said from the flatbed truck which served as a speaker's platform.

Meredith said his father, now dead, told him most white persons "are pretty decent. It's true that we got some mean white folks in Mississippi, but these people can be decent."

"There is only one thing that is holding them back. And that thing is the system of white supremacy."

"The purpose of the march was to point up and to challenge that system of white supremacy. That thing is fear — a fear that grips the Negro in America to his very bones, not only in Mississippi, but in every section of this country, because every inch of the country is controlled by the system of white supremacy."

Meredith recalled that he was shot on the second day of his march "but as you can see here, that didn't end a thing."

Meredith began the trek June 5 at Memphis, Tenn., 225 miles north of Jackson. He was wounded by a blast of birdshot from a shotgun that day near Hattiesburg, Miss., after covering 27 miles. A white man, (Continued on Page 8, Col. 2)

King, in the end, maintained his dominant role among the leadership but recognized the changing mood of Negroes. He defended nonviolence in integration but quit talking about new federal legislation — apparently no one was interested.

The march, from all indications, stirred many Negroes to action. Hundreds flocked to vote. (Continued on Page 16, Col. 5)

Governor Scheduled to Sign Olana Measure at Noon Today

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was scheduled to sign the so-called "Olana" bill at noon today at the famed Frederick E. Church estate in Columbia County, thus enabling the State Education Department to complement the funds raised privately to purchase the famous artist's estate and renovate the art museum.

Signing of the bill was scheduled for noontime at Olana, which is located three miles south of the City of Hudson on Route 9 in Columbia County. While the outdoor ceremony was listed as being open to the public, the main house will not be open to the public.

Signing of the bill, which authorizes conveyance of part of the property of the famous American painter for use as a community college for Columbia and Greene Counties, is a culmination of an effort to preserve and maintain the unusual structure, which is a landmark in the Hudson Valley — Catskill Mountains area.

The estate of the famous 19th century artist of the Hudson River School, located on Mt. Merino near Hudson, is considered a prime example of opulent Americana of that century. The 25 room house, built in the early 1870's, houses many of the works of the famous Hudson River artist, as well as Church's collection of art pieces and works from throughout the world.

Perfectly kept and preserved, the entire estate was scheduled to be auctioned a year ago last spring. It was withdrawn from the auction block by a concerted effort to persuade the estate trustees that the public would find a way to keep it. Subsequently, Olana Preservation Inc. was formed as a nonprofit organization to procure the nearly half million dollars necessary to pay for the property and make it a permanent museum.

Alexander Aldrich, one of the Republican candidates seeking that party's nomination for the seat in the 28th Congressional district, said Sunday that "essential patient services are being maintained." He added, "If a health emergency existed, it would be my duty to report it to the mayor and the public."

Brown spoke against a background of a walkout by the 1,500 specialists — physicians, dentists and optometrists — who walked off their jobs Friday after contract negotiation broke down.

The specialists seek an increase from $23 to $43.50 for half-day sessions at clinics. Other demand include a guaranteed number of working days and a retirement fund.

The commissioner said city hospitals will handle most of work done by the doctors in the 232 health centers and stations. Volunteer doctors were used Friday at a Bronx health center to give examinations to young summer job applicants, officials said.

Brown said "certain preventive services will be postponed." He said the most pressing problem involves physical examinations for 25,000 underprivileged pre-school children taking part in the Head Start program. The examinations are scheduled to begin in two weeks.

The commissioner said, however, that "any prolonged interruption of services could entail a danger to public health."

Warsaw Police, Catholics Clash In New Outbreak

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — About 1,000 hymn-singing Polish Catholics clashed with club-swinging police Sunday night in two attempts to march on Communist party headquarters in Warsaw.

At the height of the outbreak, helmeted police charged into a chanting crowd of youthful supporters of Stefan Cardinal Wyszyński, the Polish primate, and began swinging their truncheons. Newsmen saw at least two persons struck by clubs and reported several arrested.

The violence erupted 10 years to the month after the bloody 1956 riot of Polish workers in Poznan which set off a shock wave felt throughout the Communist world. The trouble in Poznan was a forerunner of the Hungarian revolution.

The Catholic hierarchy and Poland's Communist regime have been at odds for months over a proposal by Polish bishops for Polish-German reconciliation.

As a result of the controversy the government rejected a proposed visit to Poland by Pope Paul VI, barred Cardinal Wyszyński from traveling abroad and closed Polish borders to foreign pilgrims during the celebration this year of the millennium of Christianity in Poland.

Claims No Emergency In Walkout

Patient Services Being Maintained

NEW YORK (AP) — City Health Commissioner Howard J. Brown has denied reports that the walkout of 1,500 Health Department doctors from city health centers and special clinics constituted an emergency situation.

Negotiations in the dispute resume today.

To Allay Anxiety

In an apparent effort to "allay public anxiety," the commissioner said Sunday that "essential patient services are being maintained." He added, "If a health emergency existed, it would be my duty to report it to the mayor and the public."

Business Week in Review

Dies of Burns

BINGHAMTON, N. Y. (AP)—Army Pfc. William E. Steier, 22, of Binghamton, has died of burns suffered in South Viet Nam when his helicopter was shot down by hostile fire.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Steier of Binghamton, first learned Saturday that their son was missing. Then, they were notified Sunday night that he was burned to death in the crash.

Steier, a helicopter crew chief in the 1st Air Cavalry Division, was drafted last July. He went overseas shortly after Christmas.

housing starts — have continued to slide, reports showed during the past week.

Though automobiles are selling at their second-highest level, they aren't keeping pace with last year.

Housing starts fell in May to their lowest level in 3½ years. Otherwise, the economy kept on an even keel, spurred by demands of the Viet Nam war.

General Motors reported selling 107,232 new passenger cars in the middle 10 days of June, off 14.1 per cent from 124,845 in June 1965.

Performances by the other automakers: Ford, 58,451 sold in mid-June against 62,738 a year earlier, a decline of 7 per cent; Chrysler, 38,976 against 34,428, an advance of 14 per cent, and American Motors, 8,143 against 7,276, a gain of 12 per cent.

Passenger car production for the week totaled an estimated 189,100 units, compared with 186,291 the previous week and 201,779 a year ago.

Housing starts in May fell 13 per cent to an annual rate of 1,306,000 units from 1,499,000 in April. A year earlier the pace was 1,516,000.

Foreshadow Changes

Some economists term housing starts a leading indicator, foreshadowing changes of direction in business activity. But a government official said, "This is simply a manifestation of the credit squeeze that housing is in."

Freight traffic on the nation's railroads for the week was the highest in 22 years, showing an increase of 8.6 per cent over a year earlier.

The advance of the cost of living — which has been in its steepest climb in 15 years — was kept to a minimal one-tenth of one per cent in May by a drop in food prices.

Grocery prices fell six-tenths of one per cent — the first drop in eight months. The decline was offset by rises in the costs of clothing, housing, medical care and personal services.

The result was that consumers paid $11.26 to buy goods and services worth $10 in the 1957-59 base period.

Average earnings of factory workers climbed 60 cents a week in May to $99.22 for those with three dependents and to $91.35 for single workers.

Cost-of-living pay raises will go to more than 200,000 workers with labor contracts pegged to the government index, including 3 cents an hour to 95,000 aerospace workers and 5 cents to 75,000 meat packing employees.

Flour mills raised prices another 25 cents a hundred pounds — the second increase within a week. Earlier they imposed a 15-cent boost.

Indications were that the retail price of bread would be raised 1 cent for a one-pound loaf.

Wheat Prices Higher

Bad weather that harmed some crops, government surpluses and a tendency by farmers to hold back in marketing their crops have combined to send wheat prices higher.

United Air Lines announced that it has bought 24 Douglas jets for about $220 million.

George E. Keck, president, said that growth of airline traffic and demands in United's markets necessitated the purchase of 18 long-range DC-8-61s and six DC-8F jet freighters.

The House of Representatives overwhelmingly approved and sent to the Senate a mild expansion of the federal-state unemployment compensation system.

The bill would increase the net federal unemployment tax on employers by 0.2 percentage point starting next year, and eventually would increase by $1.200 the annual wage base on which the levy is applied.

Steel production inched up during the week of 2.67 million tons, a gain of 0.4 per cent from 2.66 million tons the previous week. Output for the year totaled 63,466,000 tons, off 3.3 per cent from 65,899,000 tons in the like period last year.

Reports from large steelmakers indicated that the slump in automotive buying of steel has hit bottom and is starting to turn up sharply.

Balsam Won't Let Supporting Oscar Go to His Head

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hey, Leo — if nice guys finish last, how come Martie Balsam won the Oscar?

He won it, all right, playing a role you might have missed if you went into the lobby for popcorn. Nonetheless, a mustachioed Martin Balsam ascended to the stage of the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium on April 18 to claim his prize as best supporting actor of 1965 for his performance in "A Thousand Clowns."

Back in Hollywood the actor immediately returned to the Tucson, Ariz., location of "Hombre." He is now back in Hollywood to finish the film and enjoy the fruits of his triumph.

He was asked if his fellow performers in "Hombre" — Paul Newman, Fredric March, Diane Cilento, Richard Boone, etc. — were treating him with proper respect?

"Not at all," he replied. "They're treating me worse than before."

He was kidding, I think. Few actors in films are better liked by their contemporaries than Balsam.

"I must admit," he admitted,

"people have been wonderful about the award. That has been the best part about it: the reaction of friends."

Balsam isn't about to let the Oscar go to his head. At 44, he has clocked 25 years as an actor. Bronx-born, he studied dramatics at New York's New School for Social Research, got his first job in a Long Island stock company.

Started in Night Clubs
After wartime service as a flight engineer with the Air Force, he tried his luck as a night club comic, then eased into television. His first film was "On the Waterfront," and he quickly became one of the screen's most serviceable character actors ("Marjorie Morningstar," "Psycho," "Breakfast at Tiffany's," "The Carpetbaggers," etc.).

"I almost didn't take the job in 'A Thousand Clowns,'" Balsam said. "The part wasn't that big, and I didn't think I wanted to play another agent."

"But I happened to be in New York when they were shooting there, and my wife was having a baby, so I took the picture."

Dear Abby . . .

'Stymied' Reader Causes Controversy

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You have had the good grace to admit that there IS a problem which even you can't solve. I refer to the letter from "STYMIED," who asks how provided parents can guard against orphaning their children and leaving them to the care of strangers. No, I have not solved the problem, but I have considered it.

May I suggest an organization to be known as "PARENTS SYNONYMOUS"? Here's the idea: Through you, or an organization you inspire, parents of similar backgrounds and means are teamed up. Each agrees to adopt the children of the other family in the event of the death of both parents of that other family. For example: your organization (using computers?) would possibly match the "STYMIED" family with MY family. My three children, too, have had their educations provided for through the age of 21. The same system as some adoption agencies use in matching color, race, and religion could be applied here.

Death of parents is a traumatic experience, and the orphaned children will be most likely to "recover" in an environment to which they are accustomed — one which disrupts their lives the least. Sincerely,

"VISIONARY" IN MPLS

DEAR ABBY: Why should anybody be stymied about making provisions for their children in case of death? There are church and fraternal organizations galore that specialize in caring for orphaned children. The Loyal Order of Moose, Masons, The Veterans of Foreign Wars, Independent Order of Foresters, and Odd Fellows to name a few. Even insurance companies, I thought everyone knew that.

NOT STYMIED

DEAR ABBY: "STYMIED" states that her only living blood relative is incapable of rearing healthy, normal, well-adjusted children. Yet she herself goes on to say that she is afraid to even get into an automobile with her husband for fear they will both be killed and their children orphaned. I wonder if SHE thinks SHE'S "normal and is well-adjusted?"

CONFUSED

DEAR ABBY: We were a family of nine when our parents died and do you think for one minute that when death took our mother, father, a sister and a brother all within three months we disbanded? We did not! We stayed together and took care of each other and we made, out just fine.

And so will other families who are taught to love and look after one another. That's what our parents instilled in us when we were kids, and even after they died, they "lived" in all of us. Trust in God. His eye is on the sparrow.

FULL OF FAITH

DEAR ABBY: It is a good idea for parents to make a will and make their desires known with regard to whom should assume the guardianship of their minor children in case both parents should suddenly go. This of course is a job for a competent lawyer.

The main thing is to get it down in black and white and place it in the hands of a trustee, attorney, or someone who can put the provisions into effect immediately. A will which has been hidden in a coffee can and buried out in the back yard seldom does anybody any good.

BEATRICE

DEAR ABBY: Somebody ought to tell STYMIED that the odds against her getting killed in a car with her husband are extremely high. I read recently that even with the present high death rate on highways, the average man who does an average amount of driving would have to drive for 800 years before he would become a statistic.

And I assume the chances for his wife being killed with him would be doubly remote. Life is a risk. All that is assured us on this earth is the love of God.

CITY SCHOOL PROBLEMS

It's no news that the nation's cities are going through a time of troubles, and the troubles come under a variety of headings — Pollution, Traffic, Crime, Housing, Schools.

Of all of them, the last mentioned seems to constitute the most serious problem for the most number of cities. A just-published, three-year survey by the Stanford School of Education of the nation's 14 largest cities finds the overwhelming majority of them caught in a situation of double jeopardy:

Their school populations are climbing at the same time as their ability to finance education (and everything else) is declining.

Of the 14, only two — Los Angeles and Houston — showed population gains in the last census. All the others lost.

Most significantly, the losses were typically caused by the migration of middle-income small families to the suburbs. This left the cities with a smaller over-all population but a higher concentration of low-income families, both white and Negro, which characteristically have a large number of children to send to school.

As one example, San Francisco registered a 5 per cent population loss between 1950 and 1960 but a 25 per cent increase in school population.

"Local taxpaying ability is the most important determinant of social policy in American cities," says the report. "Until we find the means to reverse that equation, and let social policy determine the resources to be allocated to education we face a sea of rising troubles in our cities."

If the nation's mayors hadn't read the Stanford report, they acted as if they had at the recent meeting of the U. S. Council of Mayors in Dallas, Tex.

One resolution, presented to the city heads by Mayor Henry W. Maier of Milwaukee and approved by them by a sizable margin, called on the federal government for assistance in forcing the suburbs to share with cities the cost of housing and schools for people who live in the cities.

Just how the government is supposed to do this wasn't spelled out. As of now, the mayors' resolution is just a resolution — a cry for help.

But it is a cry which will inevitably increase in volume and range until no one, no matter how far out of the city he lives, will be able to ignore it.

BRIDGE-DOWN WELCOME

When is a motel a motel? When it's a castle in Germany that accepts overnight guests, of course.

At least 20 17th-century moated mansions are being restored and refurbished by the Federal Republic to accommodate tourists. The water-filled ditches surrounding the castles, originally designed to discourage unwanted visitors, now serve as unique tourist attractions.

BACK FROM COLLEGE

Parents who send a lad off to college sometimes get a considerable jolt when he comes back to the home fold nine months later. The jolt is likely to have in it elements of dismay and pride, with a variety of other reactions thrown in.

Take it as fundamental that the lad will be changed. The transformation may not entirely jibe with what fond parents would like it to be, yet on balance it is generally a change for the better.

The boy who left for distant parts, uncertain and brash by turn, has become in at least rudimentary fashion a young man. Tested in academic fires and the give and take of more or less independent status among his peers, he gives noticeable evidence of development toward maturity. He may show new signs of rebellion, something different from the teen-ager's common resistance to parental authority, but that is also a part of the maturing process.

The chances are that, back among familiar scenes of boyhood, the returned sophomore-to-be will revert somewhat to his former pattern of life. But the change is there, underlying all that he does. He is

SMALL PROJECTS

THE KEY TO LATIN AMERICAN PROJECTS

In rejecting Juan Bosch in favor of the plodding but utterly sincere Joaquin Balaguer for President, the citizens of the Dominican Republic have decided that they don't want to be run by an old-fashioned romantic Caribbean revolutionary. It could be that they have looked at the stable and productive island of Puerto Rico on one of their flanks, and at chaotic Cuba and Haiti on the other, and have decided that Puerto Rico's elder statesman, Luis Munoz Marin, who shed his romantic socialism years ago, represents the real wave of the future.

The key to Munoz Marin's character is a good-humored pragmatism that is willing to look operative facts in the face. Originally a believer in "nationalized" industries, Munoz Marin decided one bright Caribbean day to sell off the money-losing government-owned factories to private industry. Better full Puerto Rican bellies, said Munoz, than ideology. This sort of pragmatism is something that Juan Bosch, in all his years of friendship with Munoz Marin and Venezuela's ex-socialist Betancourt, never managed to absorb.

It so happens that the Dominican Republic, in voting for Joaquin Balaguer, has chosen to venture on the pragmatic way at the very moment that the U. S. State Department is busy reviewing American foreign policy in Latin America. Not so long ago the State Department asked a New York industrialist, Arnold Saltzman, president of the Seagrave Corporation, to come to Washington and review its Latin American programs. In the more generalized part of his critique, Mr. Saltzman, who served as head of the military procurement pricing section of OPA during World War II, is very critical of what he calls our "over-reaction" to the word "Communism." This might be interpreted as a slap at the recently retired Undersecretary of State Thomas Mann, who was primarily responsible for sending the Marines to forestall Communism in the Dominican Republic a year ago. But when Mr. Saltzman gets down to economic cases he advocates a policy that would please Thomas Mann right down to the ground if the State Department chose to recommend it for a revitalized Alliance for Progress program.

Briefly, Mr. Saltzman is telling Secretary of State Dean Rusk that "there is too much emphasis in long-range planning in Latin America, and not enough on action." We should be less concerned with long range-infrastructure and more with immediate, job-making projects. We should encourage joint ventures between United States and Latin American business interests. We should give less direct aid and more tax breaks for U. S. investment and better guarantees to U. S. business shipping or to investing in Latin America.

There should be many small projects, more self-help projects, more Food for Work projects, more community action, and more Peace Corps people.

How does this apply to President-elect Joaquin Balaguer's chances to build a good future for the Dominican Republic? He will take office with a $150 million foreign debt hanging over his country. The 3.5 million Dominican population is growing at a rate in excess of three per cent a year, yet the Dominican sugar cane growers can't even make money with a big U. S. subsidy. Three quarters of the Dominican population are illiterate; they are woefully deficient in industrial and commercial skills, and many of the countrymen are landless. There are mineral deposits in Dominica, but they are largely undeveloped. So how can the 3.5 million Dominicans become productive entities?

The key to Dominican prosperity is not to try any grandiose industrial planning, or to make an attempt to prop up the sugar industry to the point where the island will be utterly dependent on sugar exports. What the Dominicans need is a basic agricultural reform. The Trujillo family once had title to more than a million acres of the more cultivable land. These acres are now available for distribution. But the trick will be to avoid the mistake made a generation ago by the Mexican revolutionaries, who parcelled out the lands seized from hacendados in tiny and quite uneconomic "ejido" plots.

Dominica has a grand opportunity if Balaguer, in conjunction with the Alliance for Progress, will follow Arnold Saltzman's advice, which is also Tom Mann's and concentrate on "many small projects." But with the one proviso that the farms must be too small.

THE WELL CHILD

Early Immunization Vital To Assure Polio Protection

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Although poliomyelitis vaccine can be given at any time of the year, it is rarely given in the summer and autumn (the polio season) because, if the child should fail to develop his immunity in time and comes down with the disease, someone is sure to blame the vaccine.

It is especially important to see that all children between the ages of 2 months and 6 years get this protection. The oral combined vaccine against all three of the prevalent poliomyelitis strains has been proved to be safe. It will give the child immunity within a week after it is taken. If a child had his initial polio vaccine during his first year of life, a booster dose just before he enters elementary school is recommended. No further boosters are needed unless an epidemic threatens the community. If a thorough-going immunization program has been carried out, this is not likely to occur.

Q — Is a hot cereal really better for a child than a cold cereal? Are pancakes made with one egg more nutritious than a bowl of cold cereal just because they are more filling? Is dry milk (reconstituted) as nutritious as whole fresh milk?

A — Ounce for ounce the cold cereals are as nutritious as the hot but it takes a larger volume to make an ounce. More important than the temperature of the cereal is how appealing it is to your child. Remember, too, that wheat and oats are richer in vitamins and minerals than corn and rice.

The pancakes are more nutritious, not only because they are more filling but also because of that egg you put in them. Powdered whole milk is as nutritious as fresh milk but, since it is more expensive, its chief advantage is that in the dry state it needs no refrigeration and can be used in places where fresh milk is not available. There are also modified milk powders (not whole milk) but they should be used only on the advice of your doctor.

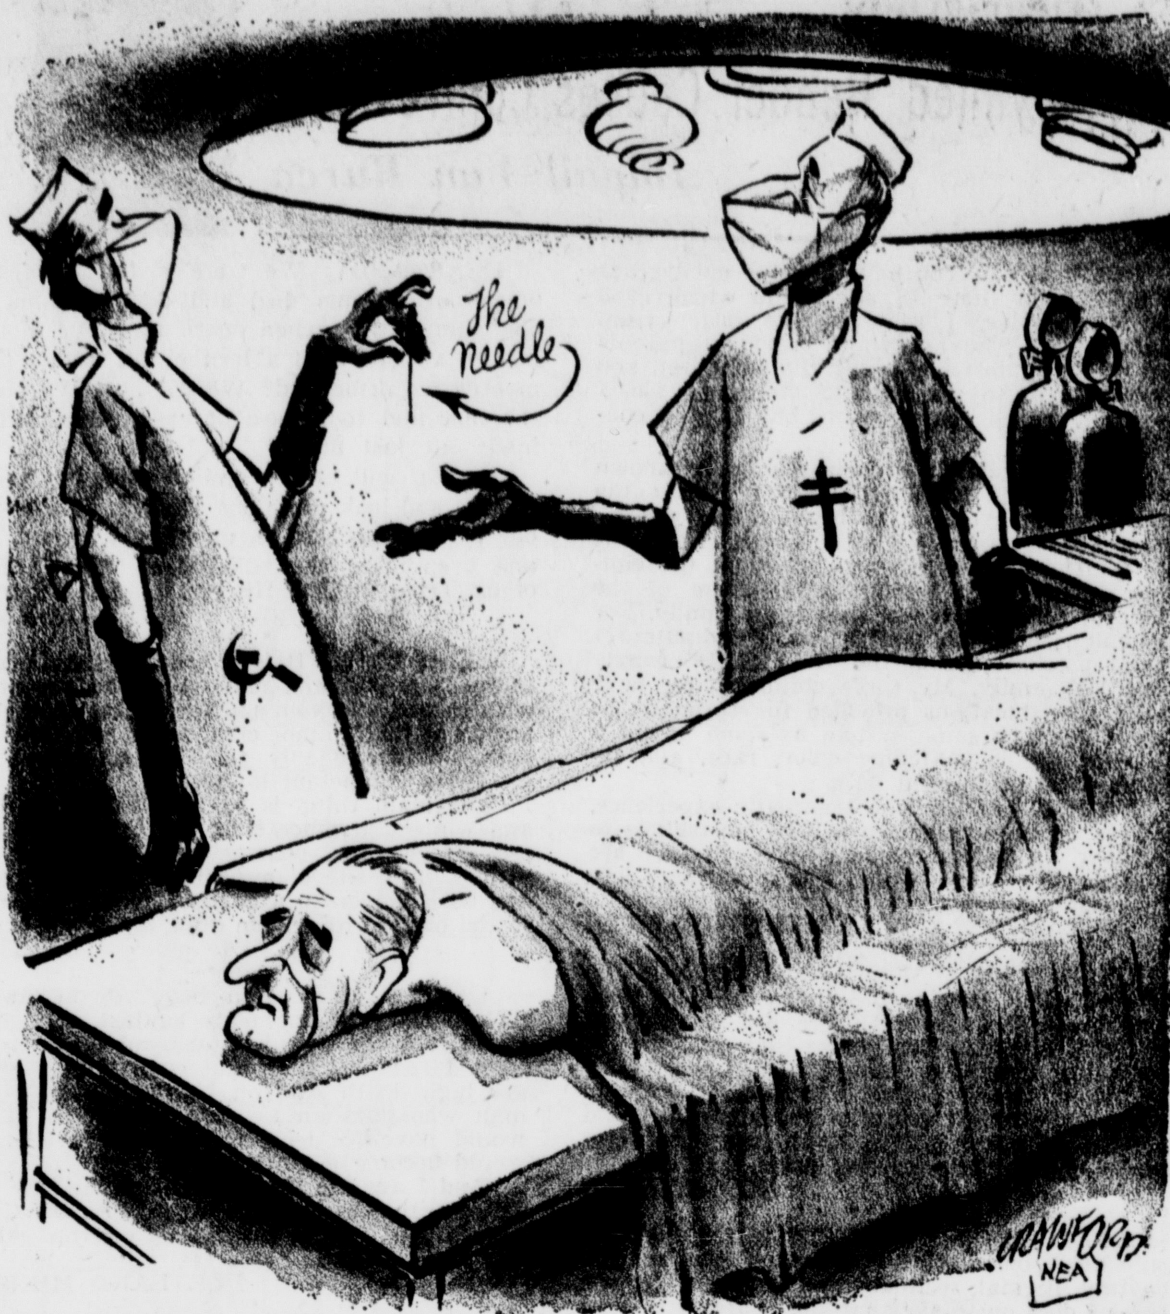

Q — Our 10-year-old boy has had alopecia areata since September. The only comment our doctor made was that the hardest thing for mom and dad was not to worry about it. Isn't there anything we can do for this condition?

A — Your doctor is right. Patchy baldness may persist for several months but eventually the hair comes back unless the disease extends to all the hair, including even the eyebrows and eyelashes. Meanwhile massage, supplementary vitamin B complex and exposure of the involved areas to the sun or a sun lamp to produce a mild burn but no blisters may be helpful.

on his way to becoming a man—his own man, asking questions of the world and drawing his own conclusions. On the whole, it is a pleasure to observe the process. And next fall he will be sent off with fewer misgivings for his second year in the halls of Academe.

Secretary Rusk says that NATO forces are at a minimum. This gives them something in common with confidence in NATO's future.

Washington News

WASHINGTON — (NEA) —

President Johnson may not actually have much of a consensus any more. But the idea is being attacked by some of his critics as if it were still very much a fact.

Republicans, of course, have scorned and ridiculed it from the beginning, treating it as some sort of scourge that must be lifted. Now, from the leftward end of the spectrum, comes a cry: "Enough of this consensus. Let's get back to real debate."

Political scientists do not look upon consensus as a smothering blanket suppressing free debate. To many if not all of them, it is a time-honored political mechanism by which majority rule is made acceptable to the overwhelming proportion of citizens.

Scholars have long argued that, most of the time, majority rule does not mean that men elected by 51 per cent of the people tell the other 49 per cent what to do. Any president or governor worth his salt inevitably tries to enlarge his support far beyond that on crucial, controversial issues. Every kind of appeal to the general public and to special groups is tried.

To the extent the appeals work, and they often do, the nation avoids the constant tearing of its political fabric, a process which could keep a vigorous people in perpetual mental civil war.

WHEN THE LATE John F. Kennedy entered the White House in 1961 after his paper-thin victory, he knew he had no consensus. In his nearly three years of trying, he achieved some measure of it, but there was still great resistance to major programs he fostered. Ironically, his death drew the country together as he had not been able to do. Johnson gained this support conceived in sympathy and shame. He consolidated it and reinforced it.

Normally, a national election is sufficiently contested to reduce such support. But in 1964 the voters' flight from Barry Goldwater vastly enlarged Johnson's majorities.

He clearly is not the type to say: "You've given me too much." From his mammoth, lopsided victory grew his self-conscious attention to the notion of consensus.

USUALLY AN UNSPOKEN but very real fact of life, consensus suddenly became a tangible, visible thing, to be cultivated and guarded like a formal garden.

The unfortunate institutionalizing of the consensus idea has to be laid mostly at Lyndon Johnson's door, though endless talk about it played its part. He seemed to act as if the national consensus were his private preserve, not to be disturbed by any trampling of the flower beds.

Against this backdrop, attacks on "consensus" are more than a little understandable in theory. But the fact is that in mid-1966 the battle is against a rickety windmill. Johnson's support has plummeted. Debate is—and has long been—quite uninhibited.

THAT THE ASSAULT goes forward suggests the same spirit of personal revenge against the President that motivates so many of his critics. To exhibit such relish in this instance seems patently foolish.

Whatever Johnson may have done to make consensus appear his personal invention, it is still seen by the political specialists as a vital mechanism in a majority-rule government.

To talk of brushing it aside as a dampener on democracy is in fact to consider destroying machinery which holds the nation together at its critical straining points.

No presidential policy is sacrosanct, nor automatically deserving of consensus support. But to shatter a good and useful consensus just because Johnson is the policymaker could be to take revenge not only upon him but upon the nation itself—and the system of government which sustains it.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The Cotton Club is an early history of Harlem. It is long gone, but it featured Negro entertainers, was patronized by whites only, and was owned by gangsters who sold booze which had aged all day. It stood at Lenox not far from Sugar Hill and the white lights out front magnetized some of the most important moths of the time.

Owney Madden owned a good piece of it. He was a tubercular gangster who had been raised in Liverpool, and came to America to make his fortune with a gun. Mr. Madden was a mild man with obtuse ideas. Once, he figured that the best way to kill a crazy rival was to gun him in a phone booth. Owney figured that a phone booth door opens inward.

He had Dan Healy, the Night Mayor of New York, as master of ceremonies. Sometimes Jimmy Walker, the day mayor, showed up in spats and pointed shoes and striped trousers for a ring-side table and an evening of charm with some lady other than Mrs. Walker. Helen Kane, the moon-faced Boop-a-doop queen, was introduced and squeaked a few bars of "I Wanna Be Loved by You."

Big Frenchy de Mange was a partner. He had a bad habit of getting himself kidnapped and ransomed for 20 cents on the dollar. He just never thought of green stamps. Madden had his own beer. It was about as good as his police record, which showed a murder conviction for a crime he knew nothing about. Still, Madden was held in esteem by city editors and reporters, because he never lied to them. Also, his Cotton Club had orders never to give them a tab. A Negro band leader named Duke Ellington got his start in the Cotton Club. It was long before Mood Indigo became a classic.

Probably the greatest asset Owney Madden had was to take nothing and make something of it. He bought Primo Carnera, a simple-minded giant, and made him world heavyweight champion. Primo had more chrysanthemum than cactus in his fists. When he won the heavyweight title, Madden took Carnera's purse, and gave the giant a few hundred dollars.

Madden fired off Carnera and permitted him to fight Maxie Baer on the level. It is easy to imagine on which side Owney's money was bet. Baer hit the giant so hard with an uppercut that the size 15 dogs lifted off the floor, settled back, and raised a cloud of dust like talcum. Primo was through.

Latin American Intervention Principle Is Vague to Some

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — While the Organization of American States voted 18 to 0 to order the withdrawal of the 8,000 troops of six of its member nations which were sent into the Dominican Republic a year ago to preserve order, the opinions expressed by the envoys from some of the Latin-American countries show that the principle involved is not yet clearly understood.

The ambassador of Chile, for instance, said he voted for the resolution because the troops shouldn't have been there in the first place, and similar criticisms of the original intervention were voiced by other envoys. The ambassador of Uruguay urged that "the trend toward broad and arbitrary interpretation of international law be forgotten and that the mistakes of the organization of American States not be committed again."

But these objections are more emotional than realistic. There is hardly an ambassador from Latin America who can afford to stand up and approve any intervention whatsoever without encountering the hostility of public opinion in his own country. For there is an inherent fear that such a precedent will be invoked to meddle at will in the internal affairs of a country.

Has Had Protection

The fact which cannot be overlooked, however, is that Latin America for more than a century and a half has had the sole protection of the armed forces of the United States against aggressive action or attempted conquest by European governments. The Monroe Doctrine, which denounces any invasion of the independence of American states, has been broadened by the OAS itself in recent years so it is no longer, in theory at least, the function of the United States alone to protect this hemisphere against invasion by European powers.

There has been a tendency in practice to ignore some violations of the Monroe Doctrine.

The Soviet Union and Red China have taken advantage of this retreat, and nearly every country in Latin America has been to some degree infiltrated by Communists who exercise a constant influence on internal affairs. In Cuba a military base was actually established by the Soviet Union. Its "advisers" are still on the job and play a leading role in the government of Cuba.

If it had not been for the intervention of the forces of the United States, the Dominican Republic would have gone the way of Cuba. Members of the Organization of American States — far from voicing criticism of what was done — should be strengthening the basic principle of the Monroe Doctrine and declaring that no nation from any "trend toward broad and arbitrary interpretation of international law be forgotten and that the mistakes of the organization of American States not be committed again."

Incidentally, the concept of military intervention to preserve a country's independence is upheld also by the United Nations charter, which says in Article 52:

Encourage Settlement

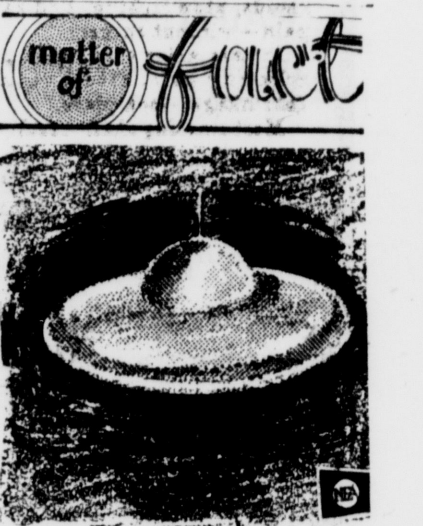

"The Security Council shall encourage the development of pacific settlement of local disputes through such regional arrangements or by such regional agencies as may be established by the states concerned or by reference from the Security Council."

The Organization of American States last Saturday filed with the Security Council a copy of the resolution adopted ordering the withdrawal of its troops from the Dominican Republic.

The position of the United States today is that local revolutions and internal controversies in this hemisphere are not usually the concern of this country but that when they endanger the lives and property of persons from any part of the world, some force must be interposed from without—preferably by the member states of the OAS—so as to eliminate any excuse for a European or Asiatic power to intervene.

The OAS action in the Dominican Republic is an important precedent and should have after many unnecessary emergency steps by this country alone such as was forced upon the United States at the outset when the Communists started to take over the city of Santo Domingo. Today — after a free election and the restoration of order — the other five nations which later sent their troops to the scene to help preserve the Dominican Republic have been fully vindicated.

UFOs, "unidentified flying objects," have been reported since ancient times. History is full of references to strange sights in the sky. In medieval times a comet was regarded as a weird and terrifying sight, as well as an omen. Comets, in fact, were regarded as heavenly visitations. The "modern" UFO was born in 1947, owing to a series of bizarre circumstances beginning with the civilian pilot who reported a "flying saucer" near Mt. Rainier, Wash.

Says Demonstrators Want to Evade Draft
MORRISVILLE, N.Y. (AP)—Daniel J. O'Connor, chairman of the American Legion's National Americanism Commission, says those who demonstrate against the war in Viet Nam are making "a clear effort to evade the draft."

He told more than 1,000 delegates to the 29th annual Boy's State opening session Sunday: "Should the day come when any boy in this audience should betray his country by a thoughtless demonstration, we will have reached the end of Americanism as we know it."

Delegates from around the state were selected by local Legion posts and high school fac-

Another Medical Group Refuses To Participate

LAKE PLACID, N. Y. (AP)—While a state health official pleads for physicians "to relax and try out" the state's new medical - aid program, the Society declares its members will not participate.

The society became Saturday the latest county medical group to take that stand, unless, it said, the Legislature revises the statute to guarantee free choice of physicians and makes other changes.

Dr. Jay Brightman, an assistant commissioner in the Health Department, told the final session of a four-day convention of the state Public Welfare Association:

"When the Legislature and the Congress go home and other groups start leaving us alone, we are going to get together with the Welfare Department and put on the best program ever devised."

"I'm sure it will all work out," he told the 300 delegates at the convention.

Medical societies in several counties have said their members would not participate unless changes are made.

Antonio A. Sorieri, deputy commissioner of the Social Welfare Department, also said Saturday that an inter-departmental committee had negotiated successfully with the state society on the fee question, still an unresolved issue, but that the society's House of Delegates rejected the plan.

The law provides for payment of medical bills from federal, state and local funds for treatment of persons whose income is considered inadequate to meet medical costs.

The basic formula generally covers a family of four, with one wage earner and with a net, after - taxes income of $5,000.

"Editorial of the Air"

Delivered—June 22, 1966

By—Harry M. Thayer, President

Primary Day is Tuesday, June 28th.

We believe in Primary elections. We believe in Primary elections for the very simple reason it gives the voters the opportunity to choose the candidates they desire to have on the ballot in November instead of having them picked by political party machinery.

Tuesday is a very important Primary Day for Republicans of the 28th Congressional District which is comprised of five counties in our listening area. The Republicans must choose their candidate for Congress in the November Election.

It is very seldom, indeed, that a candidate appears on the political horizon so well-qualified, so well-equipped, so honorable and so dedicated as is Alexander Sam Aldrich. Here is a young man with actual and practical governmental experience which he has achieved over a 10-year period. Experience in the government of the largest city in the world and certainly the most dramatic to govern. Plus experience in the government of the Empire State of the United States.

Sam Aldrich is not only presenting an established record in government service, but he is presenting a record of a man of integrity and capability. Sam Aldrich is the kind of a government representative who when he says he will do something or strive to accomplish some particular matter, does not stall, procrastinate or come up with some phony answer or explanation. Sam Aldrich follows through. Not today necessarily, but definitely the following day. This has been established again and again.

On the other hand — when Sam Aldrich is asked to do something he knows he cannot achieve or does not feel or believe he should achieve, there is no hesitation in saying, "I'm sorry — it cannot be done." This is the kind of a man who should be in Washington representing the people of the 28th Congressional District of the State of New York. This is no "I'll see what I can do" individual — This is a "Yes or No" man and these are few and far between in our present representatives in high places in government.

Republicans have waited a long, long time for a man of Sam Aldrich's stature, qualifications and dedication to come along. We are fortunate, indeed, a man such as Sam Aldrich is ready and willing to go to Washington to represent us.

What Sam Aldrich promises — he will do — for he never makes a promise that he cannot keep. And that's a lot these days. Never has there been a candidate for any election for whom we have had the enthusiasm, desire and confidence to vote for as we do for Alexander "Sam" Aldrich.

We urge registered Republicans in Ulster, Dutchess, Greene, Columbia and Schoharie Counties to join us Tuesday in voting for Sam Aldrich.

This has been a WGHQ editorial of the air by Harry Thayer.

Retired Railroad Man Dies; Was West Shore Head

STEPHEN J. KEATING

Retired West Shore trainmaster and veteran of two World Wars, Stephen J. Keating died Sunday at his residence in Hurley.

A native of Kingston, Mr. Keating retired as trainmaster of the River Division of the New York Central System June 30, 1961, after 45 years with the railroad.

He began his railroad career Nov. 30, 1916 as a telegraph operator and agent in the St. Lawrence Division. He served at various stations in the division and on June 17, 1920, was promoted to train dispatcher of the River Division working out of Weehawken, N. J. He returned to Kingston in October, 1939, as trainmaster, the post he held until his retirement.

Served in Navy, Army
During World War I, Keating served two years with the Navy in the North Atlantic Submarine Patrol.

Keating was a captain in the engineers when recalled to duty by the U. S. Army in World War II. He was given a field promotion to major in the Transportation Corps in Tunisia and was later commissioned a lieutenant colonel.

Foreign duty tours included Tunisia, Naples, Foggia, Apennines, Rome-Arno and the Rhine-land.

He received six battle stars as well as numerous ribbons and citations. Mr. Keating was a member of Kingston Post 150, American Legion.

Surviving are his wife, the former Olive C. LeBrun; a daughter, Sister Mary Berenice, Sister of St. Ursula, New York City; three sons, Stephen J. Keating Jr. of West Hartford, Conn., John D. Meredith

Aubrey Norvell, of Memphis, was charged with attempted murder and is free on a $25,000 bond in the case.

King and other national civil rights figures rushed in to take up the marathon mission, turning it into a Negro voter registration crusade. They led the marchers off U. S. 51 — the route planned by Meredith — and meandered through the heavily Negro populated delta area.

Covered 252 Miles
The trek covered 252 miles on the highways, many more inside such Mississippi towns as Batesville, Grenada, Greenwood, Itta Bena, and Belzoni. A side trip by auto to Philadelphia for a rally unleashed violence and a task force from the march returned to the east-central Mississippi town last Friday for a two-mile walk to the courthouse under heavy police guard.

There was also violence at Canton, where the marchers were dispersed by police tear gas when they tried to set up tents on a school yard which authorities had forbidden them to use.

Meredith recuperated from his wounds in New York, where he is a law student at Columbia University. He returned Friday, triumphantly leading a column down U. S. 51 from Canton to Tougaloo College.

Meredith walked at the front of Sunday's final procession for a while. He had to drop out and ride ahead in an auto because his leg, still not healed from the birdshot wounds, began swelling.

Chant 'Black Power'

Some of the marchers chanted "Black power" — the theme emphasized by the more militant civil rights forces participating in the crusade.

As Sunday's column passed through a white residential section, a white man in the march shouted out to spectators, "Hello friends."

"Friends, hell," a white woman on a sidewalk yelled back.

At the Capitol, King, who heads the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said the rally "brings to a majestic close our long and turbulent trip through the state of Mississippi. It is the greatest demonstration for freedom in the state of Mississippi to date."

He hailed Meredith, saying, "It was his bravery, his majestic scorn of crippling fear that originated this march."

Among the whites joining the final days' procession were AFL-CIO Vice President Walter P. Reuther and Justice Michael Mummanno of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

There were no serious incidents reported along the eight-mile route.

Some 2,000 whites clustered near the Capitol, impassively watching the rally. They included 50 Ku Klux Klansmen wearing green pants and shirts, with white ties and white belts.

quiem will be offered for the repose of his soul at 11 a. m. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery. Friends may call at the Jensen and Deegan Funeral Home today 3 to 5 and 7 to 9 p. m.

Expect Big

them—Alexander W. Salay and Harold Clark. Only three of the five can win.

In the Democratic Primary, Attorney John J. Schick of Kingston is challenging Hurley Democratic Town Chairman, James T. McCordle, for the position of State Committeeman. McCordle was the choice of the Ulster County Democratic Convention for member of the committee when he defeated Schick by only two votes at the convention.

If a voter is in doubt as to whether or not he is enrolled, he should check with his Town Chairman. A heavy vote is expected in the primary election throughout the county as voters participate in this preliminary election in which they directly nominate for office the candidates of their own party. State-wide and national interest will be focused on the Congressional race here, and the election of Constitutional delegates is of much interest locally.

Elsewhere in the state, the Associated Press reported President Johnson undoubtedly will be among those watching philosophically for the results of the state primary election.

Seek Victory
Among those seeking victory are a Supreme Court judge supported by U. S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, a national Democratic figure and something of a rival to the President.

Others vying for party nominations include a lightweight boxing champion of the world, a cousin of Gov. Rockefeller and a former editor of a major Upstate newspaper.

At stake in 103 contests are party nominations for the November elections to the U. S. House of Representatives, the State Senate and Assembly and the 1967 Constitutional Convention.

At the same time, scores of candidates are seeking party or public office at local levels.

7 Million Enrolled
According to the State Department's Election Bureau about seven million persons are enrolled in the four major parties in New York State.

The Democrats number about four million, the Republicans have slightly more than three million, the Liberal Party, more than $5,000, and the Conservative Party, about 22,000.

As a rule, however, voter turnout for primary elections are high.

Early hours for Tuesday's election are 3 p. m. to 10 p. m. in New York City and from noon to 9 p. m. elsewhere in the state.

Voting in primary elections is restricted to persons enrolled in the party in a district in which there is a contest.

103 Contests
Of the 103 contests for major posts, 51 are for Assembly nominations, 26 for seats at the for the U. S. House and 10 for the State Senate.

New York City voters will make their choices among the 67 races for major offices in the city, while there are 36 such races elsewhere in the state.

Democratic contests include 40 races for Assembly seats, 16 for the Constitutional Convention, 10 for Congress and 7 for the State Senate.

The GOP has eight races for the Assembly, eight for the Constitutional Convention, five for Congress and two for the State Senate.

To Battle in 3
The young Conservative Party will battle in three contests for the Assembly, two for the Constitutional Convention and one for the State Senate.

The Liberal Party pits Frank M. Corso and John A. Brush in a lone duel for the nomination for candidacy for the U. S. House from the Second District on Long Island. Corso already has the Democratic endorsement.

Not far from that race, in New York City, voters will make their choice in the race for the Surrogate Court judgeship.

In that test, Sen. Kennedy is supporting Justice Samuel Silverman against another Supreme Court Judge, Arthur G. Klein, who has been endorsed by the Republican Party.

Note Fight Here
Moving Upstate, one of the congressional primaries finds scions of two politically-oriented families competing for the Republican nomination in the 28th Congressional District, composed of Ulster, Dutchess, Greene, Columbia and Schoharie Counties.

Alexander Aldrich, the governor's cousin and former executive assistant, faces Hamilton Fish Jr., son of former Congressman Hamilton Fish Sr.

Each seeks to oppose Democratic incumbent Joseph Y. Resnick of Ellenville, who was swept into office in the 1964 nationwide Democratic victory.

Nearby, Daniel E. Button, former executive editor of the Albany Times-Union, meets lawyer John D. Meader for designation as the Republican candidate for the 29th congressional district.

Picked by Age
The winner will meet Richard J. Conners, who was picked by Albany's aged but powerful Democratic machine when popular Democratic Rep. Leo J. O'Brien announced he would not seek re-election.

Button already has the Liberal Party nomination, won despite a stiff court test.

Among the contests for State Senate nominations is one that places lightweight boxing champion Carlos Ortiz in the ring against three other Democratic candidates in the 29th Senate District — parts of New York and Bronx counties.

Conservatives Are Urged to Vote in Primary Tuesday

Harry S. Hoffman Jr., chairman of the Ulster County Conservative Party Committee today urged all enrolled Conservatives

Prehistoric Animals

KINGSPORT, Tenn. (AP) — The Smithsonian Institution and the Virginia Polytechnic Institute will excavate in Southwest Virginia to seek remains of prehistoric animals, says Dr. Clayton Ray of the Smithsonian. He said a skeleton found recently in a cave near Gate City, Va., has been identified as a giant ground sloth which lived about 10,000 years ago.

to vote Tuesday in the Conservative Party Primary. "Open primaries for public elective offices have been supported by the Conservative Party of New York State since its organization four years ago," Hoffman said, "and the enrolled Conservatives of Ulster County have an opportunity Tuesday to exercise their right to select party candidates — a State Senator and three delegates to the State Constitutional Convention which will be convened in April, 1967." The County leader reminded all enrolled Conservatives that their customary polling places will be open from 12 noon to 9 p. m. Tuesday.

"One of the most important reasons for enrolling in a political party is to have an active voice in the selection of party candidates," Hoffman pointed out. "Any enrolled voter," he continued, "can vote in the November election, but only a person enrolled in the Conservative Party can vote in a Party Primary such as will be held Tuesday." Besides urging all Conservative party members to take part in Tuesday's Primary, Hoffman recommended that all voters enroll in the party of their choice in November so that they can exercise their right to select the party ballot in the November Elections.

THE REWARDS OF THRIFT

Money is getting more costly in some of the key financial centers of the world: New York City, London, Bonn, Brussels. This situation creates an attractive position for thrifty savers who want to get good wages on their money. The Bank of England charges 6 per cent on its advances. The Federal Reserve Banks of America gets 4½ per cent and perhaps this will be somewhat increased. The Belgian National Bank has recently upped its rate to 5½ per cent and the Bonn, Germany, Federal Bank charges 5 per cent.

The impact of more costly money is thus international in scope. It extends from the world's largest and leading borrower—the United States Government—with a current debt of $320,000,000,000—down to the individual who is delighted to receive high earnings on his savings.

Recent action in Washington carries great significance. The Secretary of the Treasury of the U.S. has asked the appropriate congressional committee to approve two important measures:

1) To lift the ceiling on the Federal debt and
2) To increase the interest rates on Government obligations floated to help pay Uncle Sam's huge expenses.

And it is probable that before this article appears, both of these measures will have been sanctioned.

Here is another interesting coincidence: at the very time when permission is being asked to increase basic interest rates, Congress is voting favorably on a measure to raise minimum wage rates. The measure, in some form, is sure to pass. Thus, wages for money and for labor are being increased on a wholesale basis. Far-flung results in the social and economic world will grow out of these measures. Minimum wage rates especially will greatly affect the national economy.

Over a period of years right here in New York City, I have witnessed their beneficial influences. Thousands of unskilled workers today are living in better quarters than they were 25 years ago.

For example, a couple coming to New York City in 1946 could not afford a good apartment on the wages they were getting. But the minimum wage situation enabled them to double their earnings and to afford a comfortable, roomy, four-room apartment.

Blocks of slums in New York City have been replaced with fine apartments which unskilled workers could move into with their wages amply adequate.

Higher interest rates here will be a boon to millions of thrifty savers in this country. Accumulated savings greatly reduce inflationary pressures.

The Congress of the United States favors a minimum hourly wage rate, effective on February 1, 1967, of $1.40 an hour and then, in 1969, it proposes to lift this to $1.60 an hour.

In the immediate years ahead, higher wages for labor and for money will make the rewards of thrift very attractive and armies of people will see their financial self-reliance grow.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Many of us have inexpensive plastic foam type coolers, and love them—except for one thing. It is so easy to jab a hole in them when putting them in the car, or setting them on a sharp stone on the ground.

After ruining two of these coolers, my husband had a wonderful idea. He went to the grocery store and got a heavy corrugated cardboard carton just a little larger than the ice chest.

When we are ready to go picnicking, we put the cardboard box in the car, set the ice chest in it, and remove box and chest when we reach the picnic area. I'll admit it isn't quite as easy to handle this way, but it is worth it, as it certainly prevents having to buy new chests so often.

Gladys Bainers

Dear Heloise:

Here is another use for your nylon net:

I sewed it over the wire guards on three of our electric house fans for safety's sake. One never knows when a child might stick a toy or a hand into the blades.

I found it very easy to whip the net on the frame of the fan with a needle and thread.

Ruth Davis

Dear Heloise:

Recently while dieting, I discovered a way to add flavor to cooked vegetables without having to season them with calorie-adding oleo or butter...

I add a beef bouillon cube (chicken or vegetable flavored cubes may be substituted), to the water in the pan, and let it dissolve thoroughly before putting in the vegetables I want to cook. This way, the flavor of the beef goes through the vegetable.

Two cubes will flavor a large pot of vegetables, and there are only about six calories in each cube.

Anne Murray

I tried this, and it works just fine.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I discovered that if I put my children's everyday clothing in the freezer (right off the line), by the next day the clothes are just the right dampness to iron.

This saves time sprinkling them, and also prevents mildew, which is so prevalent during warm weather.

A READER

Dear Folks:

For those of you who just cannot grow philodendron inside your home (if it's on stakes or poles, this makes a great deal of difference), try putting some water in a plunger-type spray bottle (after setting the plant in the bathtub or sink) and spraying the leaves themselves.

Spray them all along the pole, wetting the pole, also.

I have found that the water gets to the roots (there's one at the bottom of the stem of each leaf if you will notice), and the plant will grow faster.

This is also good if you have low humidity in your home.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

When you make a summer dress, add a panel of the same material to the inside of the skirt.

This usually eliminates the need for a slip—and is, oh, so cool.

Health for All

Quiet, Please!

Most people agree that loud, sudden, or prolonged noise can be a nuisance. But it is a positive hazard to health?

There are two schools of thought on the subject, but those who uphold the affirmative view seem to be getting more numerous. (And, incidentally, noisier.)

Recently a Congressman announced his intention of introducing a bill calling for the establishment of a national noise control agency. He did not specify his conviction that noise is getting noisier everywhere one listens, and that it "destroys efficiency, interrupts minimum requirements of sleep, severely strains the nervous system, is extremely costly, and may even cause coronary conditions."

No conclusive studies have been made so far on the effect of noise on general health. It is known, that constant or frequent exposure to loud sounds can damage the hearing. "Hearing loss induced by occupational noise," observed a writer in the American Journal of Public Health, "has been recognized for over a century." He added that such hearing loss "results from years of exposure."

Another commentator in the same publication pointed to the fact that engineers and mechanics who tested jet engines in the early years of their development were subject to nausea, headache and fatigue.

Whether or not the rising sound volume has a marked effect on general health, a rising volume of opinion appears to support the Congressman's complaint against what he calls "the cacophony of aircraft engines, automobiles, air conditioners, construction equipment, machines, trains and buses — to name only a few."

Whatever may happen to his proposal, at least it marks serious recognition of the growing nuisance and probable health hazard caused by excessive noise.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, June 27, the 178th day of 1966. There are 187 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1942, FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover announced the arrest of eight trained German saboteurs who were said to have landed by submarine on New York's Long Island and in Florida.

On this date In 1929, color television was demonstrated at the Bell Telephone Laboratories in New York City.

In 1940, Wendell Wilkie and Charles McNary were nominated as the GOP standard-bearers by the Republican National Convention.

In 1950, Lt. Col. James Little of Wyoming fired the first aerial shot of the Korean War and downed a Chinese Communist plane.

Ten years ago — President Dwight D. Eisenhower received a record $33 billion road-building bill providing what its sponsors called "the greatest governmental construction program in the history of the world."

Five years ago — The council on drugs of the American Medical Association endorsed the use of live polio vaccine developed by Dr. Albert Sabin, saying it offered longer protection than Salk vaccine.

One year ago — It was disclosed that Hollywood actor Steve Cochran had died of an acute lung infection aboard a schooner in the Pacific.

CHANNEL CHATTER

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — While television news shows suggest that the war in Viet Nam is a grim affair, war will be depicted as gallant adventure or as a barrel of laughs in the entertainment shows scheduled for next season.

Counting "Gomer Pyle" — and we probably should not since boot camp comedy has little relationship to the rest of military life — there will be seven series featuring soldiering, mostly the World War II variety. Generally speaking, from a distance of 20 years, our old enemy is being portrayed as pretty nice.

Straight Action
ABC's "Combat" and "12 O'Clock High" are straight action shows, one about combat infantrymen in France and the other about Britain-based U.S. airmen. CBS' new "Jericho" will fight the underground war. "Hogan's Heroes" and "F Troop" are just for laughs.

But even the stars-to-be of the forthcoming "Rat Patrol" are not exactly sure — yet — whether they are in a comedy or an adventure series. They suspect a bit of both.

The four young men who comprise four-fifths of the ABC show's leading players, zipped through New York last weekend en route to Spain for three months in which to turn out 17 shows. They will be using the sandy locations and sets used in the film, "Lawrence of Arabia," since apparently some sections of Spain look more like African desert than Africa. "Rat Patrol" is built around Rommel's ill-fated African campaign.

The quartet — Chris George, Lawrence Casey, Justin Tarr and Hans Gudegast — already have a tendency to work as a team, often finishing each other's sentences.

To Be Audacious
"Rat Patrol," one gathered from them, will be "audacious and bigger than life" and portray "the camaraderie of the professional soldier." It will also have as a regular character a German officer, played by Gudegast, and he will be an awfully good guy even if he is their steadfast enemy.

"I am not a heavy," insisted Gudegast. "Even though occasionally I think I may have to try to kill one of them."

George will be an American sergeant, Casey and Tarr will be privates. A fifth actor will join them on the Costa Brava to play a British sergeant. All of them are practically unknown at the moment. Tarr auditioned for his part upon graduating from the American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

Red China Seen Deepening Quarrel With Russia Through Hostile Message

An AP News Analysis
By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Against the background of a new Peking policy flop, this one in Romania, Red China seems to be deliberately trying to deepen its quarrel with Moscow, to the extent of outright military hostility toward the Russians in border areas.

Red China has dragged Outer Mongolia into the conflict, with an out-and-out accusation that the Mongolians, abetted by the Russians, violated Chinese territory, sought information on Red Chinese troop deployment and "even planned armed aggression."

These accusations were made public in a belligerent formal note to the Mongolian People's Republic, a buffer between China and the U.S.S.R. and a Soviet ally. The note was published while Premier Chou En-lai was in Romania in what apparently was a fruitless effort to create further division and confusion in the Soviet bloc.

Mission Termed Failure

Chou's Romanian mission appears to have failed. His attitude toward his hosts seemed clearly to reflect angry frustration. The existence of a Communist center in Peking hostile to Moscow had helped Romania assert a large degree of independence from the Soviet Union. But the Romanians obviously were not prepared to go so far as to thrust themselves into the Chinese camp.

Chou went on to Albania, Red China's only ally in Europe, where he would be comforted by slogans denouncing Soviet "revisionism" and posters depicting Joseph Stalin as a hero.

of world communism ranking with Mao Tze-tung. With him went a large cargo of bitterness which seemed sure to sharpen the quarrel with Moscow and intensify China's isolation.

With frustration piling upon frustration for Chinese policy, the Peking leaders could become desperate enough to go to extremes in asserting themselves as a world power and the dominating nation in Asia. As it did in the case of India, Peking can use border issues against Moscow as a weapon to emphasize its claims.

Sounds Warlike Note

The note to Mongolia was startlingly warlike. Peking's Foreign Ministry said that in April, armed Mongolian guards entered Chinese territory, captured a cowherd and "in the presence of Soviet personnel" tortured him.

"Furthermore," it said, "you people tried to obtain information about the number of troops in the Chinese border region, kinds of weapons, habits of border guards, the administrative organization, and conditions of the workers."

It claimed Mongolians violated Chinese territory as far back as December, and "your side even planned armed aggression under a false pretext." This, it said, showed that "the Mongolian side stops at nothing to achieve its plans."

Soviet diplomacy swooped into Mongolia last fall. A high-powered team headed by Communist chief Leonid I. Brezhnev signed a mutual defense pact with the Mongolians, apparently nailing down Soviet authority where the Chinese had obviously tried to intrude. This offensive left the Chinese furious.

But there is tension all along the 3,000-mile frontier separating Red China from the U.S.S.R. Long ago, Foreign Minister Chen Yi and others complained of "unfair" treaties of czarist days when the Russians occupied what is now Soviet Asia. Indirectly, Peking claimed almost a million square miles of Soviet Asia. Published Chinese maps have been showing much of the Soviet area as Chinese.

As if reacting to all this, Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny early this month was quoted by Moscow radio as saying in the Soviet Far East that soldiers of that military district, along with the Pacific fleet and border guards, would protect a region "created by the hands of our forefathers."

For some time, the Chinese have been complaining of Soviet military maneuvers in border areas and of subversive Russian activity, notably in the area of Sinkiang, a highly sensitive Chinese military zone.

Sallies Were Failure

The Chinese now will be all the more angered because, while Soviet thrusts in Asia, such as the mission to Mongolia and the Tashkent agreement, were successful, China's ending Indian-Pakistani hostilities into Europe and elsewhere have been dismal failures.

It is likely that all this will add up to another big tear in the flimsy fabric of world Communist unity. The break looks more and more unbridgeable.

BRIDGE

When to Rebid Five Carders

JACOBY & SON

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Every bridge book makes a point of saying that a good five card suit is rebiddable. Most of them fail to go one step further and point out that "rebiddable" does not mean that you must rebid it, but merely that you may when advisable. Do not rebid it just because it is right there in your hand.

Specifically, when you hold 5-3-3-2 distribution and your partner bids any number of no-trump there is usually no reason at all to rebid your five card suit. If your five card suit will run as a trump, it will probably run as a trump. You have no glaring weakness that the enemy will attack.

Today's South had never learned these principles. Hence, he rebid three clubs to show that he held a five card club suit. North might well have persisted in no-trump but North had only one stopper in each suit and felt that he should support clubs rather than fight his partner.

he was down one trick. North would have had a lead pipe cinch at three no-trump. As a matter of interest he probably would have wound up with 11 tricks because East might well have opened a heart away from his queen-ten. This would give North three hearts, two spades, two diamonds and four clubs.

June 24, 1966

Dear Enrolled Democrat:

On Tuesday, June 28, 1966, between the hours of 12:00 noon and 9:00 p. m., the polls will be open to afford you an opportunity to choose a Democratic State Committeeman for Ulster County. It is my earnest wish that I might have your support for that position.

This position is an important one, since the successful candidate becomes your Ambassador to the State Democratic Committee and to the other Democratic Committees. He votes to elect the Democratic State Chairman, helps establish policy and serves on such committees as the State Chairman directs.

My qualifications and background are as follows:

Born in Town of Esopus — June 13, 1920
Graduate of St. Peter's School (1934) and Kingston High School (1938)
Attended New York University — 1939-1941
U. S. Army Air Corp — 1942-1946
Bachelor of Arts Degree, Siena College, Albany, N. Y. — 1949
Graduate of Albany Law School — 1952
Clerkship — Rusk & Rusk, Esqs., Marlboro, N. Y.
Assistant District Attorney — 1954-1956
Partner, Law Firm of Schick & Klein, Kingston, N. Y. — 1957 to date
Special City Judge — 1958
Democratic Candidate for District Attorney — 1958
Four times Democratic Delegate to Judicial Convention
Delegate to Democratic State Convention — 1962 and 1966
Attended 1960 Democratic National Convention at Los Angeles
Alternate Delegate to 1964 National Convention at Atlantic City
Member of Ulster County Board of Health since 1962
Chairman of Ulster County Democratic Executive Committee since 1963
Asst. Counsel, Joint Legislative Committee on Insurance Rates 1965-66

I submit that the foregoing qualifies me for the position. My service and education have all been in the Upstate area which gives me a wide and long-standing acquaintance with the public and party leaders of the State of New York.

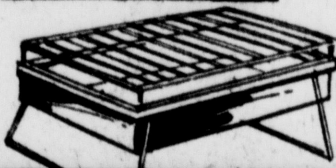

I hope you agree that I am qualified for this important position and that you will add your name to the roster of Democrats who will exhibit the increased Democratic spirit in our County by donating a few minutes of your valuable time to cast your vote on next Tuesday at your regular polling place.

Respectfully yours,
JOHN J. SCHICK

2 Persons Hurt, Three Are Cited In Ellenville Area

Two persons were injured in weekend traffic accidents investigated by Ellenville State Police. Three motorists were cited for violations.

Sergeant Donald Paulson of the Ellenville State Police detail said cars driven by Sandor Koppel, 45, Brooklyn, and Harry Levine, 16, Ellenville, were in collision on Route 52 about 500 feet from Greenfield Park at 4 p. m. Sunday.

Auto Fatality

BELMONT, N.Y. (AP)—Richard Rose, 20, of Belmont was injured fatally early today when a car in which he was riding left Route 244, at the western edge of this Allegany County community and struck a tree.

Koppel, whose car was stopped on the highway, was cited for stopping on a highway. The summons is returnable at a later date before Justice of the Peace Herbert Poppel, Town of Wawarsing.

Levine sustained lacerations of a finger and right hand and suffered shock. He was treated at the Ellenville Community Hospital.

Koppel told troopers he stopped to check his tires. At 2:30 a. m. Sunday, William Johnson, 21, of Conway, S. C., escaped injury when his car left Samsonville Road about five miles west of Route 209, knocked down four guard posts and hit a tree after going over an embankment. He was cited for driving with unsafe tires. The summons is returnable before Justice of the Peace Poppel at a later date.

Justice of the Peace Raymond Lawrence, Town of Rochester, Johnson told troopers glaring headlights of an oncoming car forced him to lose control of his vehicle.

Alfred Whitfield, 32, of Lakewood, N. J., was cited by Ellenville State Police on a charge of driving without a license after his car reportedly hit a car owned by Roderick McLennon, Brooklyn. The mishap occurred in a parking lot at the end of Fallsview Road about three miles east of Route 209, Ellenville, according to Sergeant Paulson.

Odell Valentine, 54, of the Fallsview Hotel, a passenger in Whitfield's car sustained facial lacerations. The summons issued to Whitfield is returnable before Justice of the Peace Poppel at a later date.

Bombers Hit

raid—one of 68 missions against the Communist North Sunday—was a particularly successful blow at North Viet Nam's vital fuel reserves. These stores have been the target of intensified recent air attacks.

Immediately after letting loose their heavy bombardment, pilots of the low-level jets radioed they saw huge explosions accompanied by thick black smoke. One flier banked sharply to avoid a glowing orange fireball at 3,000.

"An entire hill erupted," another pilot said. While the air blows were being dealt against the North, U.S. pilots killed an estimated 70 Communists, destroyed 460 buildings and hit 36 river sampans in South Viet Nam, a spokesman said.

On the ground, U.S. Marines and Vietnamese troops went after the remnants of a battalion of North Vietnamese regulars and hard-core guerrillas in tunnels and bunkers northwest of Hue. The Leathernecks counted 66 enemy bodies, took four North Vietnamese regular prisoners and captured 37 weapons, a spokesman reported in Saigon.

Marine officers at the battle scene estimated the relentless U.S. air and artillery fire may have cost the lives of 300 Communists, or about half the enemy force. U.S. 7th Fleet ships offshore joined in the barrage.

Down the coast, eight U.S. Army men were killed when two helicopters collided near Tuy Hoa, 230 miles northeast of Saigon, as the bulk of the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division went into action in Operation Nathan Hale against a tough North Vietnamese battalion.

Maj. Gen. John Norton, the cavalry commander, took over all command when his reinforcements joined elements of the 101st Airborne Division, Marines and several Vietnamese battalions in the expanding drive.

The new spearhead into the Trang Luong area north of Tuy Hoa took place during a visit Sunday by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam. He traveled by light plane and helicopter in his first battlefield tour since his return from conferences in Hawaii Thursday.

The allied force painstakingly pursued the camouflaged North Vietnamese — about 600 or more men — in small units, making sporadic contact with them. So far, 395 Communists have been reported killed in the eight-day operation. Nineteen Communists and 141 weapons have been captured, a spokesman added.

The Marines joined the fight after concluding their own sweep — Operation Deckhouse 1 — near the battle zone. No results were reported.

An American spokesman re-disqualify Bennett, the vice chairman of the bipartisan committee, was made at the opening of the fourth—and climactic day—of public hearing.

Dodd and his wife, Grace, were expected to be the chief witnesses at today's hearing to answer charges that the senator had acted as an "errand boy" for Chicago public relations man Julius Klein, a registered agent for West German interests.

Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., said the committee had no control over its members and added he was disposed just to lay the request on the table.

The committee was expected to ask Dodd where he got three Oriental rugs in his home.

It wants to find out from the petite Mrs. Dodd whether the rugs were gifts from public relations man Julius Klein, the controversial lobbyist for West German business firms.

Allegations against Dodd include charges by columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson that Dodd received expensive gifts in return for praising Klein to West German officials and clients.

Dodd's former office manager and personal bookkeeper, Michael O'Hare, 30, testified Thursday he saw the Oriental rugs in the senator's home in Washington's Georgetown section, but didn't know who paid for them.

er registration offices; they joined in rallies and trudged doggedly down the pavement.

In contrast to the Alabama march of 1965, the Mississippi march touched the masses with a message of hope and self-respect.

The Alabama march had a single purpose — to get a federal voting rights law enacted.

While the Mississippi demonstration gave considerable emphasis to a proposed law now in Congress, its real significance lies in its triggering response among Negroes in Mississippi.

Today's Negroes are not concerned about legislation. They talk about bread on the table, money in their pockets, and Negro officeholders in the towns and counties.

The march emphasized deepening resentment of what is considered by some Negro leaders to be inaction by the federal government and particularly President Johnson in implementing the major civil rights laws enacted in the past two years.

Judge Bascom Dead, Prosecuted Gambling Cases

GLENS FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—Wyman S. Bascom, who once won statewide prominence as a special state prosecutor in gambling cases, is dead at the age of 81.

The former Washington County judge and member of the State Power Authority died Saturday in Glens Falls Hospital.

He was 35 when he was named to probe gambling at Saratoga Springs in 1920. Eventually, Bascom obtained 38 convictions.

After seeing two gambling trials dissolve into mistrials, Bascom finally won convictions that year despite the efforts of a battery of legal talent headed by the late William Fallon, popularly known as "The Great Mouthpiece."

Bascom was graduated from the Albany Law School at the age of 20. He served as Washington County district attorney from 1915 to 1929 and as county judge from 1929 to 1953. In 1949, he was named to the State Power Authority.

A lifelong resident of Fort Edward, he also served as Republican chairman of the town. Survivors include his wife, Julia, a son, three daughters and a brother.

Finds Confusion Everywhere

Likens Viet War to Blind Pup Scampering, Butting, Barking

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — The war in Viet Nam is like a blind puppy. It scampers, skips, butts its head, barks in pain. With this year almost half over, the end is still no more in sight than at the start of 1966.

There was chaos in Viet Nam, criticism at home, confusion elsewhere among Communists and non-Communists in the first half of 1966. In Indonesia the Reds suffered disaster without any war at all.

Near the end of 1965 the United States stopped bombing

North Viet Nam while President Johnson sent his emissaries scotching around overseas, talking peace, seeking signs of it. There were none. Hanoi stood firm.

So did Johnson. The bombing was resumed. The ground fighting continued. More deaths on both sides, more U.S. troops to Viet Nam. At home the critics of the war teamed up on Johnson, in and out of Congress.

Johnson ordered a restrained war, wary of the critics, concerned about the dangers, perhaps with Red China, if he stepped it up too much. And as the routine war continued chaos engulfed South Viet Nam.

Public opinion polls showed dwindling confidence in Johnson's handling of the fighting. In America youths paraded, performed and protested against the war. This was a mixed picture, too.

Motives Range Widely

While some of the protesters must be credited with earnest convictions thoughtfully arrived at, for others the motivations probably ranged from a simple desire to assert themselves to discontent with things in general.

But they made noise. So did the Buddhists in Viet Nam. Right in the midst of the murky war they gyrated through the streets of Da Nang, Hue, Saigon, demanding civilian government.

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and his government of generals agreed to oblige, set in motion the machinery for civilian government. Rendered ridiculous by success, the Buddhists then demanding a quick exit by the generals.

Looking back on it, their whole performance looked irresponsible for they never made clear how they would run a government or even that they could. But they performed.

Buddhists, men and women, burned themselves to death, spread altars in the streets, multiplied anarchy. Ky suppressed them. Their futile leader, Tri Quang, took refuge in a hunger strike.

Ky grabbed him, empty stomach and all, put him in custody.

The Buddhist revolt collapsed. But all this involved months, slowed the war, made many Americans wonder whether this country should be mixed up in it at all.

And even if Ky emerged looking like a strong man, this may not last in a land so unpredictable. But it was a slow six months mostly everywhere, and just as murky as Viet Nam.

In Europe, French President Charles de Gaulle, with reports indicating he never even discussed the momentous step with his Cabinet, decided to do a wrecking job on the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Pulled Out of NATO

He decided to pull his troops out of NATO. It was a shattering thing. It could have been a disaster for the Western alliance. Sometime it may prove to have been just that.

But the other 14 NATO allies patched the pieces together and De Gaulle made a trip to the Soviet Union, although nobody seems to know why, perhaps not even De Gaulle. Years from now he may seem to have been as irresponsible as Tri Quang. Tensions, however, were off the United States if only because tensions between the Soviet Union and Red China increased. While they fussed and fumbled communism encountered a disaster where unexpected and without battle.

The pro-Red Indonesian government of President Sukarno was taken over by the military, Indonesian Communists by the thousands were reported slaughtered, and the country now will probably turn pro-West.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON Ap Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — An interest rate war is brewing. On both coasts banks and savings and loan associations are announcing that they'll pay more on some forms of savings accounts effective July 1. Any one lucky enough to have some spare cash may be in a position to play coy and be wooed.

Congress has been talking of regulating this battle for savers. Some congressmen dislike high interest rates, period. Others are alarmed at the form the battle is taking: the luring of customers from one kind of financial institution to another.

But Thursday the House Banking Committee threw up its hands and tossed the complicated question of putting limits on how much interest can be paid on what form of account over to the Federal Reserve Board with a plea for action.

The Fed has been active in talking quietly to commercial bankers about what it considers an allied but perhaps more pressing danger, and one more squarely in its province: the granting of loans for projects that could be considered more speculative than productive.

And the spurt of interest rate increases over recent weeks works both ways: for savers or for borrowers.

—Savers are getting more for their money, whether they put it in U.S. Savings Bonds, deposit it in some types of commercial bank accounts, invest it with mutual savings banks, or deal with savings and loan associations.

—Borrowers are likely to be paying more interest on loans from banks, mortgages, or monthly instalment payments for cars or appliances.

Commercial banks are allowed by legal regulation to pay no more than 4 per cent for regular savings accounts with withdrawal privileges. But the biggest banks in many parts of the nation are paying 5 per cent or more on large amounts that can't be withdrawn over a specified period. The largest banks in New York City pay 5 per cent for accounts that must be $2,500 or more and held for nine months.

Most mutual savings banks were paying dividends at the rate of 4 1/2 per cent on regular savings — ones readily withdrawable — until January. Then most went to 4 1/2 per cent. But now one of the largest in New York City says it will pay a 5 per cent dividend on regular accounts. Another big one says it will pay 5 per cent on accounts that must be held for specified terms.

As the interest war spreads, two of the largest savings and loan associations in California announce they'll go up from the 5 per cent with which they've been rewarding savers. They'll start paying 5 1/2 per cent on passbook accounts and 5 1/2 per cent on accounts held for a long period.

Why all this generosity to those who save for short or long periods?

Because the banks and the associations are short of money — and this, despite the continuing rise in the nation's total supply of money. The demand for loans has been rising faster than the banks could lay hands on lendable funds. So they've raised interest rates to lure those with idle cash.

The associations have been losing funds. Some withdrawn money may have gone to the competing banks, some to buy stocks, some to pay taxes. But the associations say they haven't enough lendable funds to meet the needs of the mortgage market — and that home building will suffer.

That's why Congress and the monetary authorities are concerned. Home building is lagging. Demand for business loans has risen even while the monetary watchdogs have been trying to restrain over exuberance by keeping credit moderately tight — and interest charges high.

The saver is sitting pretty at the moment.

Doing The Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST

TELEPHONE CHATTERBOX, STUBBORN SALESMAN BANE OF BUSY HOUSE-WIFE'S EXISTENCE

Dear Mrs. Post: My most puzzling problem in etiquette is how to terminate a door-to-door timely telephone call. So often a friend calls, asks if I have a few minutes and then talks for an hour or so. I have even resorted to hanging up on these people. I am also at a loss as to how to terminate a door-to-door sales pitch. Is there a tactful way to get rid of these people? —Mrs. E. W.

Dear Mrs. E. W.: In getting rid of these pests, tact goes out the window. All you can do is say (interrupting if necessary) "I'm terribly sorry, I have to run; we'll talk some other time." Or, "I'm sorry I just don't have time to chat now." Give the door-to-door salesman a minute or two, and then start shutting the door with a very firm "Thanks," but I'm just not interested."

Why Not Use the Guest Towels?

Dear Mrs. Post: Why don't guests use the guest towels? —Janice F.

Dear Janice: One reason, I think, is that family towels are larger. Men, especially, have trouble drying their hands on the pretty little trifles. Buy some pretty terry cloth hand towels, put them near the basin and I hope your problem will be solved.

Lady Arrives, Who Rises?

Dear Mrs. Post: When a group of men and women are seated in a living room and another lady guest arrives, is it proper for all the men in the room to rise, or is it only necessary for the host? —Kathleen L.

Dear Mrs. L.: If the number of guests is very large, only the men in the group which the woman approaches need rise. If it is a small group, all the men should stand up. The host, of course, should always rise and greet her.

What is your most puzzling etiquette problem? To the sender of the most interesting question each week, we'll send a free copy of Emily Post's "Etiquette," revised by Elizabeth L. Post. The question and its answer, will be published in this column every Friday. Send your question to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this newspaper, and don't forget to include your name and address!

Schreiber-Noteboom Nuptials Announced

Miss Judith Ann Schreiber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Schreiber of New Paltz, N. Y., was married on Saturday, June 11, to David W. Noteboom, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Noteboom of Montgomery.

The Rev. Joseph Hickey was celebrant of the Nuptial Mass in St. Joseph's Church, New Paltz. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white silk organza over taffeta, designed with a fitted bodice, scoop neckline and long tapered sleeves. A wide set-in band of Venice lace accented the natural waistline and the Venice lace appliques were repeated on the controlled skirt. A flat back bow with streamers marked the back and her full skirt ended in a full circular chapel train. She carried a cascade bouquet of daisies, lily-of-the-valley, and feather carnations with ivy.

The bride's attendants were Miss Eleanor Criley, maid of honor, Miss Patricia Schreiber, Mrs. Harold Greaves, Miss Jennifer Noteboom, and Miss Mary Schiller. All attendants wore full length white linen gowns with boat neck and elbow length sleeves. The raised waist was accented with blue and yellow daisies and bound with blue satin ending in back streamers. The headpieces were white linen crowns with blue and yellow daisy appliques and white bouffant double nosegay veils. All carried cascade arrangements of blue and yellow daisies.

Albert Noteboom of Montgomery was best man for his brother. Ushering were Fred Noteboom, Harold Greaves, Paul Schreiber, and John Cosh.

A reception for 150 guests was held at Ski Minne immediately after the ceremony. The bride, a graduate of New Paltz Central School, attended Dutchess County Community College. Mr. Noteboom is a graduate of Goshen Central.

Two Pupils Honored At Emma Wygant, Receive Certificates

Rosemary Gardecki, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Gardecki, East Kingston and Dorothy Kleinman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Kleinman, Kingston, were honored Tuesday night by schoolmates, parents, and friends at ceremonies in Emma Wygant School, Flatbush, where the two pupils completed their special training program at the end of the school year Friday.

Rosemary and Dorothy were among the first pupils to enter the school in 1961 when the Kingston school system initiated its program there for trainable retarded pupils. Formerly, the training was sponsored by the Association for Retarded Children and the Kingston Schools and classes were held in the Temple Emanuel Synagogue, Holy Cross and the Trinity Lutheran churches.

The Kingston School District is one of a minority of school districts in New York state to meet the Regents criteria calling for training until the pupil reaches the age of 21. The Flatbush school serves all of Ulster County.

Pupils from the school's four classes presented a short program of songs prior to the formal ceremonies, after a welcome by Mrs. Mabelle Mix, head teacher.

Following the invocation by the Rev. James LeBar from St. Catherine Labourer Church, Mrs. Mary E. Kent, teacher, presented the two pupils to the audience and announced they would receive Certificates of Merit for their "courage, friendliness, and cooperation" in the classroom and at Getway Industries where both have been afforded supplementary on-the-job training.

Edward Crosby, principal of Lake Katrine and Emma Wygant Schools, was guest speaker. He told parents it would be their responsibility to take the next step in the training of retarded pupils; the creation of a sheltered workshop to provide mentally-handicapped adults a place where they can become as near to self-supporting as possible and to become tax-payers in their own right.

He said that governments — federal, state, and local — were always slow to move on social problems and historically did not do so until private citizens first moved ahead on their own. He cited the Association for Retarded Children as an example of a civic organization which first tried to solve its own problems, leading to tax-supported aid and the present educational policies for training of retarded in New York State.

Mr. Crosby, whose daughter attends the school, presented the two graduates with Certificates of Merit.

Benediction was said by Rabbi H. Z. Rappoport of Congregation Agudas Achim. The graduates received gifts from the Parents Club president, Harry Needham

Boy Scout News

Receives Honors At Scout Court

A former Kingston area Boy Scout received the Scout of the Year Plaque and the Robert Hearty Memorial Camp Scholarship at a Court of Honor held last week for Boy Scout Troop 38, of Shrub Oak. He was Life Scout Donald L. Beaumont Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Beaumont Sr., of Mohegan Lake and formerly of Saugerties RD 3.

The scholarship entitles young Beaumont to attend the Read Scout Reservation at Bryant Lake for two weeks and was given in memory of a former Scout, Robert P. Hearty Jr.

The honored Scout won his awards in a contest conducted throughout the year, during which Scouts were awarded points for leadership, advancement and attendance at troop and patrol functions. During the year, young Beaumont progressed from First Class to Life Scout in rank, earned 11 merit badges and the Mile Swim Award.

His mother is Lakeland Neighborhood chairman for the Girl Scouts of America and his father, an engineer for American Telephone and Telegraph Company, serves as institutional representative for this troop. He has a younger brother, Gary, who is a First Class Scout in the same troop; a sister, Beverly, in Junior Girl Scouts; and a five-year-old sister, Carol, who plans to become a Brownie. His grandmother, Mrs. Ralph H. Beaumont, resides in Glenford, as does an aunt, Mrs. Willard K. Walker.

Scout Troop 38 is in Wicoppe District, Washington Irving Council. While a resident in this area, Beaumont held membership in Troop 10 of Kingston and in Cub Scout Pack 10, sponsored by Ulster Hose Co. No. 5.

Among merit badges he earned this year to secure his Scout of the Year award were: cooking, swimming, safety, first aid, printing, pioneer-ing, scholarship, public health, radio, metal working and painting. He has a total of 19 badges and has also undergone junior leader training.

Moral Courage Is Topic of Salutatory Speech Delivered at KHS Commencement

The meaning and applicability of courage as a universal virtue was the topic of the salutatory address delivered Sunday at the Kingston High School commencement ceremony in Dietz Stadium.

Mark Brower, KHS salutatory, said that it is justifiable to "compromise issues, but never principles."

Following is the text of Brower's speech:

"No man can truly grasp the extent of civilization's progress, especially in the last few decades, but let us today condense the 50,000 years of man's recorded history into a brief span of 50 years. If we do condense this history, we know extremely little about man's first 40 years.

However, at the end of these forty years, man emerged from his caves to devise other structures for shelter. It was only five years ago that man learned how to write, and man invented the wheel. Christianity began less than two years ago, and last year Columbus discovered America. Two months ago, the steam engine was invented. One month ago, out of this world, fifty years of human civilization, electric lights, the telephone, the automobile, and the airplane were invented. Last week, penicillin, the television, nuclear power, and the rocket came into prominence.

Today, man has launched his first satellites around the earth, to the moon, Venus, Mars, and into space. He has sent men around the earth at five miles a second, eating, sleeping, and experimenting in their new environment.

This is an astonishing, unbelievable pace, and such a rapid pace can only create new ills as it dispels old, new ignorance, new problems, new dangers. Man must add himself to these new perils and dilemmas. He must conquer them if he wishes to continue his fervent pace. He must find the courage to dispel these perils.

Called Universal
This courage which we must find is a universal virtue. We all know what it is. Yet, when we

4 Hurt in Crash
Four Dutchess County youths were injured Saturday night in a one-car mishap on Route 19, Town of Livingston, Columbia County.

State Trooper William Blackie of Claverack, reported George Best, 19, of Red Hook, was driving the car when it failed to negotiate a curve. The vehicle careened off the pavement and struck several trees in an apple orchard.

Injured and taken to Northern Dutchess Hospital, Rhinebeck, were the driver and three passengers, George Coons, 17, Randy Townsend 17, and Leonard Race, 20, all of Red Hook. Best was cited for failure to keep to the right.

try to define courage concretely, we find that courage, like a diamond, has many facets. It owes much to its setting. Courage is not always a simple trait, for individual motivation is often complex. In the rough and tumble, the complexities, of life, with its pressures, its demands for honest compromise, and its constant presentation of second-best choices, courage can seldom be manifest in simple ways. The right courage is not always clear. It is often obscured, appearing even as the wrong courage, as confusion, and as complexity.

Courage, moral courage, while great and admirable in itself, almost never appears by itself. It appears, instead, as part of that greater entity called character. And while a man without character may give brief exhibitions of courage, no man without character can be said to be consistently courageous.

On the other hand, no man of genuine character is lacking in courage. It is true that moral traits of character: honesty, seriousness, resolution, candor; and a strong belief in principle. The strength of moral courage lies in the firmness of the individual's faith and application of these character traits.

Today, we live in a society, in a country, closely intertwining every citizen, merging each into one government. Therefore, before there can be much courage in our government, in our congress, in our president, there must be a great deal of it in the American people. For we shall look hopelessly for these ideals in Washington if they cannot be found everywhere, in every citizen from New York to Los Angeles.

Lord Bryce one said, "America is all of a piece; its institutions are the product of its economic and social conditions, and the expression of its character." That is, democracy—a sound democracy—is not a cause, but, rather, an effect. It is an effect brought about by the conscience, the character, and the courage of the American people.

Gadgets Scored
Today, the challenge of courage is greater than ever before. Our everyday life is becoming so saturated with the expensive, mechanized "gadgets" of our society, and the public is becoming so increasingly aware of the seemingly endless war which we call the "Cold War" that we tend to encourage rigid, orthodox patterns of thought. Thus, in the days to follow, only the most courageous will make the unpopular decisions necessary for our survival in our struggle with a powerful enemy—communism—an enemy whose leaders give little thought to the popularity of their decisions and who can force, without fear of retaliation at election time, their citizens to sacrifice present laughter or future glory.

Although it would be easier for all of us to live and vote in traditional patterns—to be either Republican or a Democrat, a liberal or a conservative—our nation cannot tolerate the luxury of such lazy habits. Only the strength, the progress, the peaceful change that come from independent judgment and independent ideas, and even the eccentric, can enable us to surpass the foreign ideology of communism which fears free thought more than it fears the H-bomb.

I should never compromise in the days ahead, for we shall need compromises, to be sure. But these should be compromises of issues, not of principles. We can compromise our positions, our selves, our ideals. For compromise does not mean cowardice. Indeed, it is frequently the compromisers who are faced with the severest tests of courage as they oppose the rigid views of their fellow men.

We may hope that Americans will continue to exhibit principle, moderation, orderliness, and justice with the courage to defend these ideals when attacked; if they do, our country will also exhibit these principles and the courage to defend them.

Funds for Wildlife

WASHINGTON (AP)—New York State will receive this $92,004 and $460,520 in federal funds for fish and wildlife restoration, respectively.

The money comes from federal excise taxes collected from manufacturers, importers and producers of firearms, fishing rods and other types of hunting and fishing equipment. The grants, which went to all the states, were announced Sunday by the Interior Department.

Social Nature of Man Is Emphasized In Kingston High Valedictory Address

Man's recognition of his place in society was underlined as the most important task to be achieved by today's young generation by Kenneth Pauker, Kingston High School Class of 1966 valedictorian who delivered the main student address at the commencement exercises held Sunday at Dietz Stadium.

Pauker said that "the meaning of our life and achievements will lie in the contribution which we will have made" to our civilization.

Following is the text of his address:

As we graduating seniors accept our diplomas during this 51st commencement of the Kingston High School, we embark upon an entirely unfamiliar journey into a harsh life of which we know relatively little. We leave behind the protection of juvenile excuses, the dependence upon procrastinations, the not so gently prodding of guiding teachers, and the security of familiarity, as we are thrust head long into the bustle of a job or the pressure of college. We have new independence, a wider range of action, more and heavier responsibilities. Hopefully, we will also have self-reliance.

Overwhelmed by this sudden confrontation with a new life, we pause to consider exactly just what our speeding society is doing and how we fit into it. We may indeed, we search for a purpose in the existence, meaning in our comparatively trivial accomplishments, and permanence in anything human. But let us examine further the purposes of human life.

Cites Suppositions

We begin with two basic suppositions. First, all men are essentially the same. Men have the same fundamental physical make-up, generally experience similar feelings and sensations, and react similarly in many situations. Furthermore, all men pass a certain brief existence on this earth, before which they are all born in an identical manner and after which they all pass away. Regardless of what an individual does on earth, he must ultimately return to the dust from which he came.

Second, life goes on. As long as human beings continue to reproduce themselves and as long as this planet remains suited for human life, Earth will be inhabited by people who are essentially the same as each other and the same as their predecessors. Men organize themselves into societies in order to find companionship, exchange ideas, and strengthen the main. The sum of all these societies, the Great Society, will survive as long as men do.

Nobody Indispensable

Each particular individual has an expressed function in Society, but no one is indispensable, no matter what his station in life. If a man dies, there will always be another to replace him. Life goes on. John F. Kennedy accomplished much during his 1,000 days as President: civil rights, the containment of communism, especially in Latin American and Southeast Asia, and the establishment of the Peace Corps. Each of these programs is still in effect under J.F.K.'s successor. The thousands of American soldiers who die in Vietnam are replaced by thousands more, many of whom will also die there. Each G.I. is a small pawn in a deadly game of chess between democracy and communism. The pawns may be sacrificed to capture the more important king.

Entire occupations could be eliminated and their functions would be absorbed by the rest of Society. Let us imagine that suddenly, without explanation, there are no more doctors in our society. Without the practice of modern medicine, the sickly people would die and the healthy ones live. Society, however, would survive in those of us who live. We would revert to a civilization without doctors where life still went on. If it were the longshoremen who disappeared instead of the doctors, we would probably accumulate a tremendous stockpile on our nation's wharves and have a tragic economic collapse. However, life would still go on; we would survive.

Peterson.

Cincinnati Entry Sets Record in Hudson River Marathon

Scrubbs-Davis Timed in 63.93

By HUGH REYNOLDS
(Freeman Sports Staff)

The predicted calm and good boat racing weather along the Hudson River for the annual Albany to New York Marathon failed to show but Charlie Scrubbs and Don Davis fought the waves and the wind to set a new record, 63.93 m.p.h.

The speedy duo from Cincinnati in the twin-Mercury powered Gastromotorboat got an unexpected break just 200 yards from the finish line. The leader, driven by Cliff Reiff and Paul Becher of Dayton, Ohio, looked like a sure winner when suddenly it hit a swell and flipped Reiff into the water.

The second place boat, driven by Paul Mickle, local favorite from Montgomery, instead of zooming across the finish line and grabbing all the medals, stayed with the stricken Dayton boat, circling it until the Coast Guard pulled Reiff out of the water. Reiff's boat finished sixth.

Kingston Boat Third

Kingston made its best showing in the history of the event as a 16-foot, 110 horsepower boat piloted by Gus Stoski Jr., and Bill Brennan, came in third in the J Class. The boat is owned by Warren Spinnewebber of Port Ewen.

Spinnewebber was also in the race with John Sherlock in a 15½ footer with a 100 horsepower engine. Their craft, a flat bottomed racer, had a tough time with the rough water and finished far back in its class.

Bob Millette and John Fiore, racing in a 13½ foot craft with a 50 horsepower engine, dropped out at Kingston, apparently with engine trouble. There was no report on Frank Giordano's 17 footer with the 90 horsepower engine.

Near Disaster

A near disaster occurred at Poughkeepsie when Doug Swan and Howard Brown of Dayton, Ohio, raving in a 14½ foot boat with a 65 horsepower engine, hit the wake of a cruiser crossing their path and flipped over, tearing a three foot hole in the bow of their craft.

Swan was rushed to St. Francis Hospital in Poughkeepsie with what was thought to be a broken leg. However, he suffered contusions of the hip and was released after treatment.

Swan was a pretty lucky young man. According to him, his boat was third overall and first in the F Class when a thoughtless pleasure cruiser skipper decided to take a trip to Highland across the path of the speedboats. Swan's craft was hitting about 50 m.p.h. when it hit the high swell created by the cruiser.

After looking at the effects of the swell it was hard to believe that a wave could do so much damage. There was jagged three-foot hole in the bow of the boat which was towed back to shore upside down. Swan's helmet had pained on it from the boat indicating that he had hit his head during the accident.

"I'm glad I had that helmet on, Swan said. It had a pretty good dent in it."

Rough Conditions

Swan said that the conditions along the Hudson Sunday were some of the roughest he had ever faced. "We really had to fight that water out there," he said. Some of the swells were coming right over the boat and that wind made it even tougher."

This Freeman sports writer had the good fortune to run into Chief Boatswain's Mate Tom Coufal, executive officer of the Coast Guard Sutter Manitou. He showed up at the Poughkeepsie dock about 10 a. m. to find the river choppy with high wind and very poor visibility.

Chief Coufal spotted us and invited us up to the bridge of the Manitou to observe the race. A better position couldn't be found. The cutter was connected by radio to other cutters from New York to Albany and the position of the boats was known at all times.

Early Haze Conditions

It was difficult to see even a mile in the early morning haze along the river and when the Swan boat cracked up we would have had no way of knowing about it except for the Coast Guard's radio.

The Chief offered us the use of the Manitou's dingie to ride out on the river and take a look at the stricken craft. The 16 footer, piloted by Lee Harvell, a BM2 from Bloomsburg, Pa., and Mike Schmutz, SN, from Caroga Lake, N. Y., pulled along side and off we went.

The water from the bridge of the Manitou didn't look too rough but once we got moving in that 16 footer at about 30 m.p.h. it was like riding a roller coaster.

Harvell brought us back to the ship amidst the crys of the crew "Nice try Lee. Maybe you'll win next year."

The skipper of the Manitou is Charles Finn, a Chief Boatswain's Mate Warrant Officer, who invited us to take a cruise aboard the Manitou when it returns to the area for ice breaking duties in January.

Speaking of the Coast Guard, although Swan said the conditions of the river were rough and it was a tough race, he had nothing but praise for the Coast Guard and its efforts to keep the channel clear.

As for us, we'll never forget the warm hospitality shown us by the officers and men of the Coast Guard Cutter Manitou. The chief even offered us a cup of Coast Guard coffee after we inquired if it was as bad as Navy coffee. It was.

Botsford Beats Allen In HRGA Finals, 6-5

Bob Botsford, who is perhaps the best of a bevy of Dutchess Golf and Country Club stalwarts, retained his Hudson River Golf Association title Sunday with a 6 and 5 victory over Art Allen of the host Wiltwyck Country Club.

Botsford, who qualified automatically as defending champion, edged past Dick Wollman of Powelton C.C., 2 and 1, in the first round, then waited to a 7 and 6 win over fellow Dutchess member, Fred Lux Jr. His sternest test came in the semi-finals Sunday morning when he won from Wiltwyck ace, Harvey Bostic, 1 up.

The smooth swinging Allen, who qualified with a 73, got rugged opposition from Joe Dulin of Wiltwyck before squeaking out a 1-up victory in first round play.

Upsets Bill Boyle
Allen toppled Paul Balmert of Powelton, 5 and 4, before backing up tournament medalist Bill Bogle of Dutchess, by the surprise margin of 4 and 3 in the semi-finals.

Botsford, a sound golfer who always plays well at Wiltwyck, proved too much for Allen in the championship finals. He moved into a 5-hole lead on the front nine and coasted into the 6 and 5 victory.

Ed Kearney of Powelton trounced Jerry Cariffe of Dutchess, 7 and 6, for an easy victory in the First Flight finals. Cariffe defeated Frank Weller of Wiltwyck, 2 and 1, while Cariffe eliminated Ed Greene, Powelton, 2 and 1, in semi-final matches. Tom Brohard, Powelton, topped Sam Spiegel of

Fitzsimmons-Hill Capture Member-Guest at Woodstock

Joseph (Buzzy) Fitzsimmons and his guest, attorney Joseph Hill of the Twaalfskill Club, fired a spectacular 23-under-par best ball 117 to capture the annual 36-hole Woodstock Country Club Member-Guest tournament Sunday.

Fitzsimmons, a 17 handicap player and Hill, 15 handicap, posted a best ball 62 in the scorching heat of Saturday's opening round. Sunday, they were considerably hotter than the slightly cooler weather, as they toured the village links in 29-26 for a 15-under par 55.

It was the second major tournament win of the season for the county welfare commissioner, who won the Spring Handicap Match Play title in May. Fitzsimmons carded 89-90 on his own ball and Hill, a rapidly improving golfer, shot 85-77.

The finishing kick enabled Fitzsimmons and Hill to gain a one-stroke margin over the runner-up tandem of Dr. Rubin and his guest, Morton Bauman of Stamford, Conn. They shot 58-60-118 in the 100 per cent handicap tournament.

Tied for third place two strokes off the pace were the teams of Ray DuBois - Hank Schall, IBM Poughkeepsie, 57-62-119 and Robert Cantine-Rob-

POLICE PATROLMEN

CITY OF KINGSTON, N. Y.

A starting salary of $4900.00 per year with automatic increases to $6500.00.

Chief of Police Robert F. Murphy urges all qualified young men between the ages of 21 and 29 with a high school diploma to take advantage of this opportunity to begin a career in police work.

A WRITTEN EXAMINATION WILL BE HELD
AUGUST 13, 1966.

Applications are available now at Police Headquarters, City Hall, Kingston, N. Y., and must be returned by July 18, 1966.

Ugly is only skin-deep.

It may not be much to look at. But beneath that humble exterior beats an air-cooled engine. It won't boil over and ruin your piston rings. It won't freeze over and ruin your life. It's in the back of the car where the weight on the rear wheels makes the traction better in snow and sand. And it will give you about 29 miles to a gallon of gas.

After a while you get to like so much about the VW, you even get to like what it looks like.

You find that there's enough legroom for almost anybody's legs. Enough headroom for almost anybody's head.

With a hat on it. Snug-fitting bucket seats. Doors that close so well you can hardly close them. (They're so airtight, it's better to open the window a crack first.)

Those plain, unglamorous wheels are each suspended independently. So when a bump makes one wheel bounce, the bounce doesn't make the other wheel bump. It's things like that you pay the $1,585* for, when you buy a VW. The ugliness doesn't add a thing to the cost of the car. That's the beauty of it.

Also introduced were league sponsors, Mayor Neil Cox, members of the village and town boards, league officers, WGHQ newscaster Bill Sacher and Blanche Peter, manager of the Cuties.

Honor of tossing out the first ball went to Blanche Peter, whose Cutie game launched the Light Fund drive ten months ago. Approximately 400 persons viewed the historic event.

Native of Kingston Perfects Old World Tobacco Blend

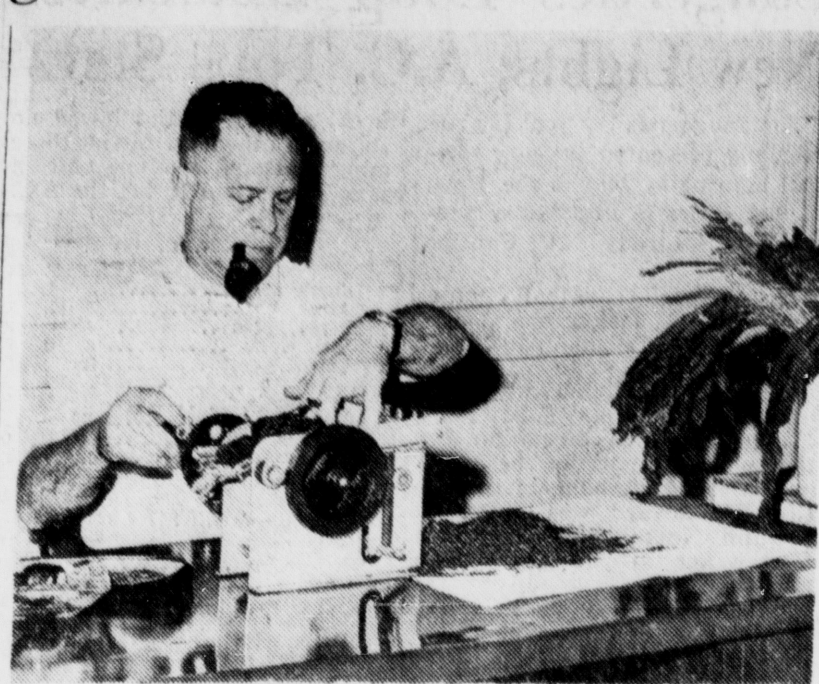

The man who perfected P. Lorillard Company's new "international" tobacco, Luxembourg pipe mixture, is a crew-cut pipe-smoking American, whose youthful, slightly professorial appearance belies both his 60 years and his international standing as one of a rare breed of world tobacco specialists.

Albert A. (Bert) Bernard, who was born right here in Kingston, is an acknowledged authority on world tobacco matters. His job as chief of Lorillard's world operations directly involves him in: export to 152 foreign markets; license manufacturing in 12 countries spanning five continents; and joint venture companies in the Far East and the European Common Market.

As the Company sees it, his job breaks down into about equal parts of salesman, diplomat, production expert, good will ambassador, authority on local (anywhere in the world) customs, quality controller, and negotiator with foreign governments and businessmen.

As he sees it, his job is "to do whatever is necessary in terms of the local situation." Some of the things that he has found "necessary": "Studying the Koran to be able to deal intelligently with South East Asians; reading extensively on 'Down Under' traditions for negotiations in Australia; and learning the hard way about Oriental 'face'." At any given moment he must be au courant on who's "in" in Latin America; the local currency situation in Pakistan; the relative stability of the new African republics; tobacco crop conditions in Turkey; and the availability of trainable labor in Hong Kong.

Scores Another "First"
Lorillard's announcement crediting Bernard as the developer and "father" of its newest smoking tobacco is a measure of his standing in the tobacco world—where secrecy is the rule, anonymity is the norm.

TESTING MIXTURES—To develop P. Lorillard Company's new "luxury" smoking tobacco—Luxembourg Pipe Mixture—Kingston native Albert A. Bernard, head of Lorillard's world operations and an internationally known tobacco specialist, tested out more than 40 different mixtures before obtaining just the right blend. Above Bernard uses cutter in his home laboratory to shred tobaccos from all over the world used in developing new product.

Within one recent 30 day period his itinerary included: West Germany (where he conferred with prosperity-happy local manufacturers who are producing, under license, Lorillard cigarette brands in increasing numbers); Hong Kong (to check on production of a newly-expanded Lorillard plant); Montevideo, Uruguay (to review growing sales achievements of Lorillard's local office which covers all of southern South America); New Zealand (to complete arrangements for a new licensing operation there); Italy (to meet with members of the State-controlled tobacco monopoly); and Spring Valley, N. Y. (to "look in on" his wife and two children).

When not traveling, he makes his headquarters in the Lorillard executive offices in midtown Manhattan.

Volunteered For Job
When Lorillard—motivated by the fact that imported luxury pipe tobaccos currently constitute the fastest growing segment of the U. S. smoking tobaccos business—decided to develop the new pipe mixture, Bert Bernard (who had never given up his college hobby of "tinkering with blends" and who is himself a "confirmed" pipe smoker) volunteered for the job.

Selecting tobacco samples from all over the world, he had them shipped to his home laboratory at Spring Valley, which is fully equipped to perform, on a small scale, all the processes in "making" a tobacco blend. For the original flavorings he felt would be required in so special a tobacco, Bernard chose a variety of spices, both U. S. and foreign-grown, and a rare honey, produced only in Luxembourg and so scarce that it is never exported.

Months of experimentation followed—with varying blends, flavoring and "cuts" of tobacco. In all, more than 40 different "finished" tobaccos were developed, tested and smoked at each stage by Bernard. At last, he was satisfied, the mixture was judged "ready" by a Lorillard panel of experts, and special equipment to produce in the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, owned by Lorillard's partner in the European Common Market. Operated by Old World craftsmen, generations of European tobacco experience and know-how stand behind it and are now being used to produce Kingston Bernard's "baby" and Lorillard's newest smoking tobacco—Luxembourg pipe mixture.

Has Travelled Widely
His travels have taken him to all of Europe, to the Middle East, Africa, Asia, Australia and South America. "But the ironic part is that much of it I've done since I joined Lorillard to 'settle down'."

Within one recent 30 day period his itinerary included: West Germany (where he conferred with prosperity-happy local manufacturers who are producing, under license, Lorillard cigarette brands in increasing numbers); Hong Kong (to check on production of a newly-expanded Lorillard plant); Montevideo, Uruguay (to review growing sales achievements of Lorillard's local office which covers all of southern South America); New Zealand (to complete arrangements for a new licensing operation there); Italy (to meet with members of the State-controlled tobacco monopoly); and Spring Valley, N. In a car-bicycle mishap reported at 6:15 p. m. Saturday, India Fitzgerald, 10, of 64 Van Buren Street, suffered knee and elbow injuries and was treated at Kingston Hospital. Police said the mishap was at Van Buren and Delmont Place and the car was driven by Eric J. Hart, 19, of 218 Harvey Street, New Orleans, La. Officers Kivlan and Spaulding investigated.

After a chain reaction mishap on Albany Avenue involving three cars near the Governor Clinton Hotel reported at 12:42 p. m. Sunday, George F. Long, 18, of Colonial Gardens, was 9 p. m.

Ham's Boogeymen

Once upon a time there was a man named Ham who wanted to be a Congressman. But, the only qualifications he had for the job was that his father, and his grandfather before him had been Congressmen.

Then along came Sam, and he had what it takes. He had plenty of experience . . . he could think on his feet . . . he could talk a blue streak . . . he was a real campaigner.

So Ham hired a magician and said "What can you do to make the people pick me instead of Sam?"

"I'll conjure you up a boogeyman," said the magician, "and the people will be so frightened they won't notice that Sam is much better suited for Congress than you."

So the magician turned Sam's cousin up in Albany into a big, bad boogeyman, and a few of the people were so scared they could no longer see Sam's good qualities.

But, one boogeyman wasn't enough to hide Sam's good qualities, so the magician conjured up another boogeyman. He called him Sam's friend at the Chase Manhattan (another cousin), and tried to scare the people into seeing some deep dark plot behind Sam's family trying to help him run for Congress.

This story hasn't ended yet. You can give it a happy ending for the 28th Congressional District by voting for Sam (Alexander Aldrich that is) tomorrow in the Republican Primary for Congress.

It was Aldrich who persuaded Life Magazine to run a 15-page account on Olan (May 13 issue) and Congressman Resnick had the pages read into the Congressional Record.

The historic bill was introduced into the State Legislature by State Senator Lloyd A. Newcombe (R-Catskill) and Assemblyman Clarence Lane (R-Windham), who saw it through to its successful conclusion.

Erhard Says

presence has not been negotiated with France.

4. Reunification of Germany is essential to secure peace and stability in Europe but this cannot be obtained through the efforts of Germans alone. It is also a responsibility of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union. Only the Soviet Union has refused reunification, Erhard said, so the key to achieving it lies in Moscow.

Erhard did not specify what problems he would like to take up with Soviet leaders, but there is no doubt reunification would be at the top of the list. The chancellor praised De Gaulle's handling of this issue during his mission to Moscow. He said he was not concerned about the French president's trip.

"At my last talk with De Gaulle (in February)," Erhard said, "his trip to Moscow was already decided on. He said then that he would under all circumstances represent the German point of view in the sense and to the extent that he considers reunification indispensable if peace and security are to return to Europe."

"He also said that Russia must be interested in seeing on its western flank — that is, in Europe — not a restless but a pacified Europe. He has done what he said."

Erhard made clear that he was not worried about French troops remaining in Germany for a time after July 1 without a new agreement. A transitional arrangement, it is understood, may be worked out with the French when De Gaulle returns from Moscow this week or the German government may issue a declaration of its own to deal with the situation.

"We are ready to negotiate about everything and to find a formula," Erhard said. "Whether it takes more or less time seems to me not so important as to maintain that the situation on the first of July will also have changed for us because of what the French have done (in pulling out from NATO)."

"Naturally we want to do this in a way that doesn't break any porcelain."

Suffers Seizure, Dies

While operating his 1965 car along Blue Mountain Road at about 2 1/2 miles west of Route 32, Town of Saugerties, at 6:45 p. m. Saturday, Oscar Lettel, 55, of Bearsville, suffered an apparent heart attack. The vehicle went off the road on a left curve and crashed into a tree, according to Kingston State Police. Anne Lettel, 50, a passenger in the car sustained lacerations of the scalp and injuries to the left knee. Both were taken by Saugerties Ambulance Service to Benedictine Hospital.

Schedule Exh'bit By Area Artists, Uptown Sidewalks

Uptown Kingston will take on the aura of an art colony on Saturday, July 9, when the Uptown Business Men's Association in cooperation with the Ulster County Art Association presents a Sidewalk Art Exhibit and Sale.

Area artists have been invited to participate, and more than 22 responses have already been received. The display will be for the enjoyment of the public, and paintings will be on sale by the artists.

Those who have registered to date to exhibit are: Stella Atkinson, Kay Bell, Emma Bonesteel, Cornelia Clark, Ann Cole, Betty Finch, Margaret Finn, Mrs. Claire Friedburg, Lillian Fromer, Mrs. Alice Gannon, Irene Hartley, Aretta Myers, Winne Overfield, and Mrs. Irene Owens.

Also, Mrs. Raymond Ransom, Gerhard Schneider, Bob Strickland, Evelyn Tyler, Mrs. Frances Saluc, Charles Taylor, Frank Vault and Mary Winchell. Other artists wishing to take part in this event may contact John Warren of the Uptown Business Men's Association or Mrs. Kay Bell, president of the Ulster County Art Association.

Gordon Dew, promotion committee chairman of the Business Men's Association stated, "We are planning this event with a twofold purpose in mind: for the enjoyment of the Uptown Shopper, and as an effort to cultivate a keener interest in art. We have many talented artists in our county, and feel that this will be an excellent opportunity to bring this talent to the attention of the public."

The Uptown Business Men's Association also is planning the Second Annual Antique Auto Show in Uptown Kingston on July 23.

Warsaw Police, and arrested more than a dozen. A confrontation between police and at least 1,000 Catholics nearly erupted in violence Friday night. Shouting demonstrators refused to let motorcycle police clear the street in front of the prime's palace and the policemen finally rode off.

Sunday night's demonstrations started after more than 50,000 Catholics jammed St. John's Cathedral and nearby streets for services including a week-long celebration of the millennium in Warsaw.

Hundreds of Communist party workers blocked street intersections to try to keep Catholic crowds from surging into the center of the city.

Clash With Police

One group of more than 5,000 Catholics massed outside the palace of Cardinal Wyszyński. When traffic police attempted to clear the streets, demonstrators lashed out with their umbrellas. About 1,000 of the demonstrators chanted "Primate, primate" and "Catholics, unite" as they marched toward the downtown headquarters of Wladyslaw Gomulka's ruling Polish party.

A truck carrying eight riot police tried to stop the marchers. The demonstrators shifted to the other side of the street, shouted "Gestapo! Gestapo!" and continued on.

A dozen helmeted police tried again to block the throng less than a mile from party headquarters, but again the marchers swung across the street and moved forward.

Then two dozen policemen charged with clubs flying and tear-gas capsules ready. The crowd turned back. Again they regrouped and resumed their march. This time several score of helmeted police made a club-swinging charge and scattered the crowd. They eventually dispersed as police trucks converged on the area.

By midnight the city was quiet.

Cycle Mishap

David Steenburn of Earlton, was injured at 7 p. m. Sunday when his motorcycle went out of control and ran off Route 81 near Cossackie. Trooper A. J. Peterson of Leeds substation said the man, whose age was not listed, was taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital and admitted after treatment of severe lacerations of the face. Further details of the mishap were not available because troopers had been unable to interview the injured man because of his condition.

Fire in Shed

Local firemen checked a fire in a shed on a property at 129 Green Street this morning. Units from Wiltwyck station and the Excelsior Company responded to a call at 10:52 a. m., with Deputy Chief Glyn M. Southard in charge. A booster tank and pressurized water were used. Owner of the property has not been determined.

Six Po'keepsie Men Hurt in 9W Crash at Lloyd

Six Poughkeepsie men were injured at 11:50 p. m. Sunday night when the convertible in which they were riding went out of control on Route 299 near Route 9W, Town of Lloyd, and overturned, according to Highland State Trooper Edward Pulver.

Walker was cited by Trooper Jack Ostmark for failing to stop at a stop sign. The summons is returnable at a later date before Justice of the Peace Lewis DiStasi, Town of Lloyd.
